Luverne plans July 4 party at The Lake

Log rolling joins fireworks, triathlon and more at The Lake

By Lori Sorenson

Log rolling competition joins a growing list of attractions at The Lake in Luverne Monday for the Fourth of July holiday.

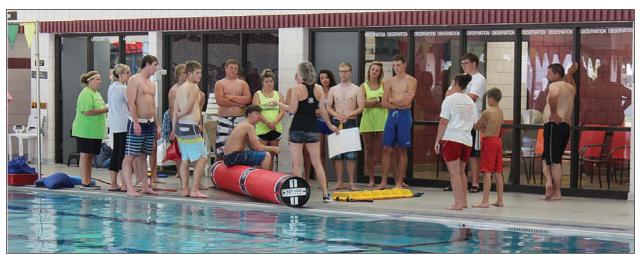

A 12-foot long, 65-pound manmade log was delivered to Luverne's indoorpoolWednesday, June 22, for training and practice.

After it was filled with water, the polyethylene log weighed 500 hundred pounds, not unlike one that would be used in Olympic log rolling competition. Carole McNaughton-Commers,

Ten years after teen's death, parents consider students in Class of 2008 as family

By Mavis Fodness

After 16-year-old Chris Ashby was killed in an auto accident July 5, 2006, his parents, Barb and Gene Ashby, established a scholarship in his honor.

The first Christopher Martin Ashby Memorial Scholarship was awarded the following spring in honor of their only child. In 2008, the year Chris would have graduated, the couple said they found it difficult to select one student among Chris' classmates to receive the Ashby scholarship.

"It would have been impossible," Gene reflected last week.

As a solution, the Luverne couple gave every student in the Class of 2008 who qualified for a Dollars for Scholars award an additional $500 in honor of Chris.

The Ashbys said several of Chris' classmates have stayed in touch, a decade after their adopted son's death and eight years after graduating from high school.

Other classmates they have followed through newspaper accounts reading about graduation from colleges, marriage ceremonies and birth announcements.

"We are glad to see most of his classmates turned out well," Gene

As for the students themselves, many think that their success was boosted in part by the Ashbys' decision to help the majority of Chris' classmates.

Eight years after receiving the scholarships, 69 out of 70 recipients who are now in the mid-20s have earned two- or four-year degrees with a few still in the process of pursuing advanced degrees. Barb thought Chris' interest in sports would have drawn him to an advanced degree either as a trainer or physical therapist.

Barb and Gene Ashby hold a copy of the Luverne High School Class of 2008 yearbook. Their son, Chris, who died in an auto accident 10 years ago, would have graduated that year. In his honor his classmates posed for their senior class picture (shown in the yearbook) in front of the Ashby home.

"Hewould have done something involving athletics," Barb said. "He loved school so much."

Chris was an "A" honor roll student and would often decline a vacation outing, choosing instead to attend school.

For the past several months, the Star Herald has reached out to the Class of 2008 through email and social media.

In their responses, many of Chris' classmates were unaware they received an extra $500 with their Dollars for Scholars award but

Lightning starts fire that destroys 136-year-old barn June 22

By Lori Sorenson

The early morning sky on Wednesday, June 22, was a spectacular sound and light show of a classic summer thunderstorm.

But one lightning bolt connected with a barn on the Darrell and Leah Van Meeteren farm northeast of Luverne.

"We heard the loudest crack that night, but we didn't realize it was at our place," Darrell Van Meeteren said Thursday. "There was a lot of electricity in the air."

What he also didn't realize was that all that electricity ignited a fire that nearly consumed the building before they even knew about it.

"At 2 a.m. the cops were pounding on our doors," Van Meeteren said.

A passing motorist on County Road 8 noticed the leaping flames across the section and reported it to the Sheriff's Office.

According to Luverne Fire Chief David Van Batavia, the blaze was too advanced by the time firefighters arrived to try to save it.

"They had originally dispatched Luverne, Hardwick and Edgerton fire departments, but we canceled Edgerton, because it was so far gone," he said.

The Luverne crew arrived with 5,000 gallons of water in its two tankers, and Hardwick brought more than 2,000 gallons.

Their job on arrival was to contain the fire and protect surrounding structures and property. "The building next to it was catching fire when we got there," Van Batavia said.

A nearby propane tank hissed with steam when water from a fire hose hit it.

As flames ate away at the barn, fire crews tore apart the building remains in order to get at every last burning ember.

"A small excavator was brought in to help," Van Batavia said. "Before we left, we laid a nice blanket of foam over everything."

He said the fire call lasted from 2 to 6 a.m., and they worked in rain most of the time they were there.

Van Meeteren said he was grateful for the extra effort.

"They said the wind was going to shift, and it did," he said. "At first the wind was from the southeast, and it carried the noise [and flames] away $from \, the \, house. \dots It's \, what \, saved \, the$ other buildings."

DNR says 'No' to rebuilding park dam

Agency seeks citizen involvement to reshape park's future

By Lori Sorenson

The Department of Natural Resources announced Wednesday morning, June 22, the dam and lake at Blue Mounds State Park will not be rebuilt.

It's not the answer the local park users were hoping for, but the decision will likely have long-term implications for water quality and habitat.

Scientists, engineers, hydrologists and others have been studying the area since June 2014 when flood damage at the dam drained the lake.

Erika Rivers, director of Minnesota state parks and trails, said the decision was not made lightly.

"We know water recreation opportunities, including swimming, are limited in Rock County, and we empathize with those who expressed a desire to have the dam and lake restored," Rivers said.

Beaver Creek watershed on track for erosion control funds

By Mavis Fodness

The Beaver Creek Watershed is $now \, considered \, a \, priority \, in \, terms \,$ of federal funds to control erosion.

That's good news for 43 flood repair projects on eroded agricultural land according to a June 20 work group meeting at the Rock County Land Management Office.

Since the 2014 flood events, the county office has received more than 160 applications for erosion repair.

The number is significantly more than the five projects the LMO office handles in a typical year, and the demand has taxed the office's ability to provide technical assistance.

Added staff and training in survey, design and layout for the conservation projects have helped, but many projects have been delayed until plans can be completed. Prior to including Beaver Creek Watershed in its priority plans, the Rock County Soil and Water Conservation District Board of Supervisors had only approved prioritizing efforts within the Rock River Watershed.

Out of the 160 applications LMO has received for erosion repair, 43 projects are within the Beaver Creek Watershed.

As a priority area these projects could gain technical assistance if applications are also made to the federal governments' Natural Resources Conservation Service's Environmental Quality Incentive Program.

Commissioners tour county, view projects

By Mavis Fodness

County commissioners received a firsthand look at various projects in Rock County on their annual road tour June 21.

Meeting in the afternoon, commissioners completed the 2½-hour transit bus ride prior to the 5 p.m. board meeting.

A 7 p.m. Board of Equalization meeting ended their day. No property adjustment requests were made.

The tour took commissioners to areas in Kanaranzi, Beaver Creek and Luverne.

County Administrator Kyle Oldre, County Engineer Mark Sehr and Land Management Director Eric Hartman directed the tour.

Kanaranzi park

Commissioners authorized Oldre and Sehr to present sealed bids to the Hills-Beaver Creek School District to purchase surplus playground equipment for the Kanaranzi park.

Playground equipment needs to be updated in Kanaranzi park, one of two parks in Rock County (the other is Schoneman Park south of Luverne).

"This park gets some use," Oldre said.

The county is looking at replacing the merry-go-round and the swing set with a larger swing set and two jungle gyms. H-BC recently purchased new equipment for the elementary school in Beaver Creek, and old equipment is for sale.

The playground equipment in Beaver Creek was also part of the commissioners' tour.

Recycling sheds

Cameras were installed at two of the county's nine recycling sheds in an effort to stop garbage and other household waste from being dumped into the green bins.

Beaver Creek and the Hills recycling sheds now have cameras to identify perpetrators.

"It's just these two (sites) that we have calls on," said LMO director Hartman.

Commissioners viewed the motion-sensitive camera at the Beaver Creek recycling shed and noted that a microwave and a bicycle rim were left in the shed. This was just days after the area had been cleared of other household waste, including a television.

The large green bins are for recyclable materials only.

Recently installed posters at each of the nine locations show what should be recycled and what should be considered garbage for the landfill.

Rural water route

Commissioners toured two proposed routes to connect the Blue Mounds State Park to Rock County Rural Water.

In November the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources approved a feasibility study to determine the best route. The DNR is searching for a permanent solution to the ongoing drinking water issues at the park. "Generally landowners have been helpful in knowing where the rock formations are,"

Oldre said. Engineers are able to determine a route within 1,000 feet of the park property before rock formations are found. Easements were garnered from all but two landowners, located directly east of the park, for the feasibility study. Engineers are considering routes coming from the north or south to the park's office, where its water distribution center is located.

Other tour stops

From the transit bus commissioners viewed five agricultural improvement projects coordinated by the LMO.

Three projects involve reconstructed waterways, new terraces and a new manure management system. The other two projects involved constructing a series of future terraces.

Other highlights of the tour included the Loop trail, pedestrian crossing lights on Highway 75, proposed entry points for kayaking/canoeing on the Rock River, and remodeling progress at The History Center.

In other business, the commissioners accepted the retirement request from Mark Hovland of the Land Records office. He retires with 30 years of service. The position opening will be advertised.

"We can assist the district in their effort to get these projects implemented," said NRCS District Conservationist Kurt Halfmann.

"We are covering a quarter of your applications with the inclusion of that one watershed."

Since last fall the LMO has received $2.6 million in estimated repair applications for the $1.5 million Rock County received through the state's Disaster Recover Assistance Program.

According to LMO Assistant Director Doug Bos, 74 projects received letters from his office directing them to also apply for EQIP.

"Whatever projects are approved for ÉQIP will help increase funding or piggyback and spread (state dollars) that much further," Bos NRCS applications are eligible for technical assistance.

SWCD Board of Supervisors and personnel from LMO and NRCS, also chose priority practices.

These practices are water and sediment control basins, grassed waterways, terraces and cover crops.

The Beaver Creek Watershed is located in the western half of Rock County and includes portions of Martin, B ver Creek, Springwater, Mound, Luverne, Denver and Rose Dell townships.

In other business, the board of supervisors:

·limited the cost share of installing a farmable terrace to no more than 50 percent cost increase over grass-back terraces.

•limited the cost share size of tile in a conservation project to no larger than 12 inches.

approved two cost share projects of $8,412 and $22,797 plus increased a previously

"It's a wide-open view now," Van Meeteren said. "This was one of the main structures on the yard."

He said the two horses that used the barn for shelter and water had found their way out, and there was only a little hay stored inside.

But it was a structurally sound building that he's disappointed to have lost. "It was 136 years old,"

Van Meeteren said, referring to information provided by previous farm owners.

"The whole farm was centered around that barn," she said. "And so many memories were made there."

Now all that remains is the red rock foundation (likely quarried from the nearby Blue Mounds), which the Van Meeterensareplanningtoleave in the ground for a possible new structure to be built on.

No state park dam/from 1A

most responsible course of action is to remove the lower dam and restore Mound Creek to a natural stream channel."

Those factors centered on water quality, endangered species and historic significance.

For example, ongoing water quality problems, in particular the presence of E. coli bacteria, would have the potential to sicken swimmers if a lake were restored in this area.

Luke Skinner, director of ecological and water resources, said hydrological flow indicates pollution sources are from outside of the Blue Mounds State Park.

"It involves the entire watershed area and land management practices upstream," Skinner said.

He said restoring the creek would contribute to efforts of the multi-county effort, "One Watershed, One Plan," to improve water quality in southwest Minnesota.

The need to protect state and federally endangered fish species, including the Topeka shiner, factored into the decision, as did historic considerations.

The dam is listed on National Historic Register of places, and rebuilding it to current safety standards likely would be incompatible with the area's historic characteristics.

Cost was also a consideration.

Estimates to rebuild the dam and restore the lake are around $6.1 million, compared with an estimated $1.4 million to remove the dam and embankments and reconstruct a 16- to 20-foot-wide stream channel.

DNRofficialsarrivedat the decision after analyzing several options for the dam site. These were presented at a February public forum in Luverne where residents of seven local cities and townships provided feedback, and public comment over a month-long period.

The feedback, however, did not show a clear consensus about how to proceed. In the end, the agency decided against structure.

Campers don't seem to mind

Blue Mounds State Park Manager Chris Ingebretsen said the absence of the lake hasn't so far had a big effect on park attendance.

"There are other reasons people come to the park — the prairie, Sioux quartzite, bison," he said. "These are still really big draws for people - probably bigger than the lake."

Last year, the first full year without the lake and beach, Ingebretsen said reservations were down only slightly, and he suspects that was due to water contamination that prevents park visitors from using park water for drinking or bathing.

"Last year we had some of the nicest camping weather we've ever seen," he said.

"This year we've had a lot of rainy weekends and really hot weekends, so that's also affecting numbers."

Next stage: Citizen Advisory Committee

Before the dam is removed and the creek restored a technical plan and design process will be spelled out.

The Minnesota Historical Society, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Federal Emergency Management Agency will consult with each other and with the public on the best plan going forward.

The DNR is inviting people to help the agency reshape the park's future.

"Blue Mounds State Park is an important part of the overall Minnesota state park and trail system," Rivers said.

"We are committed to engaging the public and local officials in discussions around site restoration, ongoing issues with water supply, and future recreation opportunities at the park."

Specifically, Rivers hopes the public can help the DNR explore future options based on the park's current features, including prairie, the bison herd and rock climbing as well as fishing or paddling in Mound Creek.

Anyone interested in serving on the citizen advisory group should send a letter of interest by July 13 via email to rachel.hopper@state.mn.us or via U.S. mail to: Rachel Hopper, DNR Central Office, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155.

The letter should answer the following questions:

•What is your vision for the future of Blue Mounds State Park?

•Why are you interested in participating on the citizen advisory group?

What education, work experience or expertise would you bring to the group? We hope to hear from people with a variety of expertise who can join us for discussions about topics such as resolving water quality issues, expanding recreation options and marketing the park," Rivers said. The group will meet regularly starting in August and will make recommendations to the DNR throughout the fall. There will be opportunities for public comment during this time as well.

President Theodore Roosevelt traveled and stayed in a canvas tent like the one history impersonator Adam Lindquist assembled Saturday at the Blue Mounds State Park. Items inside the tent were authentic or commemorative to Roosevelt's travels from 1903-1912, except for the awning that was added by Lindquist to provide shade for camp visitors.

Historical reenactor brings Roosevelt to life at Blue Mounds State Park

By Mavis Fodness

Theodore Roosevelt was right at home at Blue Mounds State Park north of Luverne Saturday.

Amid the prairie grasses and bison that make the state park their home, living history reenactor Adam Lindquist told visitors to his hunting camp display about the 26th president of the United States while acting and dressing like Teddy Roosevelt.

Lindquist's performance was like stepping back into time and speaking to the actual person.

For six hours on Saturday, Lindquist played host at the replicated hunting camp Roosevelt would have stayed in while on expedition from 1903-1912.

Inside the tent were firearms and other commemorative or authentic items Roosevelt would have had with him on his travels through the Dakotas including the traveling boxes and the displaying oi the American nag "He didn't travel without a flag," Lindquist said to guests to the camp.

Several items prompted visitors to ask questions or would give Lindquist ways to start stories he told while impersonating Roosevelt.

"I let people see what it was like at the turn of the last century and learn things they didn't know," Lindquist said.

Lindquist has won several national contests for his historical portrayal of Roosevelt.

He began impersonating Roosevelt ten years ago after he saw a picture of himself and noted his resemblance to the former president and natural-

No matter what happens Nov. 8, 'America will survive'

It's going to be a long four months until Nov. 8.

I'm already tired of the presidential campaign even though, officially, it's barely begun.

And that's very unusual for me.

I'm one of those government teacher-types that thoroughly enjoy watching, reading and talking about politics.

Except this year.

Sure, the 2016 presidential campaign has been "interesting" so far.

But interesting doesn't always mean enjoyable.

Passing a horrible car accident on the interstate is interesting. One can't help but to slow down and look.

But no one would say driving by such an accident is enjoyable. That's what comes to mind for me when I watch, read or talk about this campaign season.

It's like a bad accident you see on the interstate.

Iwon der what happened andwhat caused it. And I worry about possible outcomes.

Polls seem to show that I am not alone in feeling this way.

Maybe you've heard the recent joke: Donald Trump and Hillary Clinton are alone on a small boat and the boat sinks. Who survives?

> America. America survives.

While the joke may be funny, the underlying message is not. Many Americans seem to be asking how, in a population of over 320 million people, we ended up with these two as our only options for leader of the free world. The answer, of course, is that we have only ourselves to blame.

We increasingly get our information and "facts" from cable TV networks or social media pages that fit our chosen ideological

IN OTHER WORDS

By Jason Berghorst, reporter

If most of what we know and think about the world comes from Fox News or liberal Facebook groups, should we be surprised we end up with extremes for candidates?

Our culture has been celebrity-obsessed for generations.

Should it shock us that a reality TV star finally used his fame to help gain a nomination for president?

Controversial or extreme comments from candidates get more TV airtime and more clicks on websites.

Doesn't it make sense that some candidates are going to say extreme or shocking things for the attention?

In the end, maybe we get what

A terrible accident on the interstate that we can't help but

An accident filled with insults, name-calling, half-truths and promises that can never be fulfilled.

And hopefully people will still vote, even if some do so while holding their noses.

Myguessismanyvoteswillbe cast more in protest of the other candidate than in support of the candidate actually voted for.

No matter what happens, it's only four years until the next election and only months until we start hearing about who's running

And no matter who wins, regardless of what TV news or the Internet tells you, America will survive.

Disappointing park news reinforces need to protect water and habitat

The Father's Day flood of 2014 tore through the spillway of the dam at the Blue Mounds State Park, draining what had been the park's Lower Lake.

Since then, park visitors and community members have been waiting for answers about what would be done about the flood

Those answers were delivered last week: The dam will not be replaced and there will not be a lake feature at the park.

The Lower Lake, the beach and all it used to represent — swimming, kayaking, canoeing, fishing and building sandcastles — are forever things of the past.

It may not have been the answer many of us were hoping for, but we're learning it may be the answer that's best for all of us.

All of us who need clean water,

As it turns out, that area of the Mound Creek that winds through and around the north side of the state park is a critical part of the greater STAR HERALD EDITORIAL watershed that feeds the Rock River.

Restoring the creek back to its original stream channel will help filter water as it flows to the Rock River and at the same time protect and enhance wildlife habitat.

The waters of the Mound Creek are home to federally protected species, including the endangered Topeka shiner minnow.

Why do we care about a stupid minnow? (Many road and bridge contractors have asked that question when projects are delayed until after August spawning).

Because if we stop caring about one species, we can ask why our own species matters. We all play a role in the Earth's ecosystem.

Without connecting all the interconnected relationships of ecosystems, it's fair to say that keeping ecosystems as rich and diverse as possible is good for both humans and nature.

And hitting closer to home, protecting the environment and protecting our water just makes sense.

While it's fair to be disappointed by the loss of our state park beach and lake, let's focus on the really strong features that still make the Blue Mounds a great place to visit: the bison, the prairie, the Sioux Quartzite and the beautiful campgrounds.

And while we're at it, let's join the ongoing effort to protect our soil and water and to clean up all pollution sources—including those upstream that affect the state park water.

Fey: Proud of Sen. Weber's time, effort representing our area

Do we want a politician or a senator that will represent us and get things done? As she stated, he lectured the governor on how to do his job. Are we to just figure the governor does everything correct and accept it?

Respect for the governor is one thing, BUT that should be for all senators and representatives then. If theywere all equal, maybe something would get done.

As for the divide between the metro area and rural Minnesota, this is not pitting one area against the other area. Have you observed the money and time spent on the metro? Senator Weber continues to keep us informed about what is happening on both sides, and we decide.

Many of us are very proud of the time and effort Senator Weber has put in for our area and the state.

Weber doesn't give 'blind deference to the governor' or others

To the Editor:

A letter last week was critical of my comments to the governor during his recent visit to Worthington. In the author's hurry to play her own "blame game," she failed to mention some key parts of my comments that would give the readers a more complete view of the discussion. My points are as follows:

•I thanked the governor for his support of the Lewis and Clark project and commented on the necessity of completing the project to Worthington.

•The bonding bill failed to get to the governor's desk due to a last minute amendment by Senator Ron Latz (DFL) to add money for light rail.

 Mass transit issues need to be addressed. •I urged the governor to call for careful evaluation of existing light rail operations. They are not meeting original projections of ridership, etc. If people do not use it, we do not solve problems of traffic congestion.

•Taxpayers currently subsidize light rail operations by roughly $70 million per year.

•This is not a metro versus rural issue, as many metro/suburban folks do not approve of the current system. While I regret that some may be embarrassed by an honest and respectful discussion of issues and differences, I will continue to handle the responsibilities as state senator in such a way that truly seeks to resolve problems rather than give blind deference to the governor or anyone else.

Thank you to all who have supported your legislators as they work to get this final leg of funding for the Lewis and Clark project completed.

Speed is leading contributor in fatal crashes

Question: How long does a speeding ticket and written warning ticket stay on your record?

Answer: Awritten warning does not go on your driving record, but it is recorded in our computer system. Citations for speed, according to the Driver and Vehicle Services, generally stay on record for five years and serious speeds are 10 years.

Each year illegal or unsafe speed is one of the leading contributing factors in Minnesota's fatal crashes.

Costs of speeding violations vary by county, but typically are at least $120 for traveling 10 mph over the limit. Motorists stopped at 20 mph over the speed limit face double the fine, and those ticketed traveling more than 100 mph can lose their license for six months.

Speeding is not an innocent crime — it puts every motorist at risk on the road:

•greater potential for loss of vehicle control.

 $\bullet increased \ stopping \ distance. \$ •less time available for driver response for crash avoidance.

•increased crash severity — the faster the speed, the more violent

LHS Spanish students spend 10 days in Puerto Rico

By Jason Berghorst

Thirty-six Luverne High School students and four chaperones returned Friday from a 10-day trip to Puerto Rico.

The trip was organized by Luverne High School Spanish teacher Caroline Thorson as an extension of the lessons learned in her Spanish classes.

'The students get to see and use the things they learn in class in an authentic situation," Thorson said.

The students had ample opportunity to practice using the language they have been learning in the Spanish-speaking U.S. territory.

"To be fully immersed into a culture and a lifestyle that is different from our own is very educational," Thorson added.

The students, all sophomores or older who had completed at least two years of Spanish study, enjoyed a wide variety of experiences while touring the island.

The Luverne group stayed in three different cities in the northern, eastern and southern parts of Puerto Rico while having the chance to swim in both the Atlantic Ocean and the Caribbean Sea.

"We really got to do, see and learn a lot of things and the kids were just great about trying new foods and new experiences," Thorson said.

Experiences such as snorkeling, kayaking, zip-lining, cave exploring and salsa dance lessons were popular with the students.

The group also toured a number of sites, including a coffee plantation, an art museum, an observatory and other locales while learning about the climate, ecosystems and history of Puerto Rico.

The itinerary was a mixture of touring and learning, with some down time as well, according to Thorson.

For many of the young travelers, the trip was their first major excursion away from home on their own.

"A big part of the educational experience of trips like these is traveling without your parents and having to be responsible for your own money and belongings," Thorson said.

"That in itself is a learning experience, let alone doing it in a different language and culture."

The Luverne foreign language trips, which occur every other year, provide students the opportunity to learn these lessons while still in a relatively safe, chaperoned environment, according to Thorson.

In addition to Thorson, other chaperones for the trip included Todd Oye, Kathy Sommers and Dr. Josh Crabtree.

On the last night of the trip, the LHS group happened to be in San Juan for a local holiday that commemorates the birth of St. John the Baptist, for whom the city of San Juan is named.

Known as la Noche de San Juan Bautista, it's a celebration that is as popular as New Year's Eve in Puerto Rico.

"What a great way to end our trip," Thorson

Adrian's July 2 Dawg Days of Summer honors veterans

Adrian will host an event July 2 that highlights people and resources that support veterans.

The event, called the Dawg Days of Summer, features a mobile unit that memorializes military working dogs and their handlers who have been killed in the War on Terror.

Activities will be from 1 to 4 p.m. on 1st Street in Adrian, north of the Adrian American Legion and also inside the post home.

According to Adrian Veteran Curtis Hendel, having the mobile memorial in Adrian provided an opportunity to also invite organizations and individuals who work for veterans and active duty personnel.

"This day is not only for veterans," Hendel said, calling it a Veterans' Summit.

"For those with veterans or loved ones currently serving their country, the information that will be available on that day will be priceless."

The list of participants includes local veterans service officers, St. Paul Veterans Center, a Sioux Falls suicide prevention coordinator from the South $Dakota\,VA\,Hospital\,and\,a\,number\,of volunteers\,and$ volunteer organizations.

The list includes Operation 23 to Zero, which helps veterans in crisis and those working to adapt back to civilian life, Faribault Minnesota Legion Post 43, which is working to prevent suicide among veterans, and the Legion Riders, a motorcycle club within the American Legion.

Even if you have no connection to the military, this will be a great opportunity to honor some of those that have made the ultimate sacrifice so that we may enjoy our freedoms here at home."

He added that photographer Mike MacDonald will send several images that depict the struggles that military veterans have to deal with when reintegrating into society.

"His work is extremely powerful, and could be disturbing to some, but tells the absolute truth about the struggles of the veteran community," Hendel said. He can be reached at erodawg@yahoo.com.

Time to separate spring-flowering bulbs, butterflies begin laying eggs in vegetables

I have m a n y have been growing for andInoticed this spring that it is time to lift those bulbs and thin them. Any type of spring-flowering bulb reproduces by dividing, and eventually those clumps become too dense. Consequently the flower production is limited because of the competition.

Moving or lifting the bulbs can only be done after the foliage begins to turn yellow when the bulbs have matured for the season. If you wait too long after that, you will not be able to locate the clumps very easily because the leaves disappear. I will lift the bulbs and separate them, only replanting the largest bulbs.

Replanting can be done immediately, or you can wait until later September or October...justdon'tforgettoget the job done. Mixing some bone meal in the soil at the same time provides a good nutrient base that will feed the bulbs for many years. Summer-blooming spireas are either in full bloom or have finished, so this is the time to shear those dead flowers, and the plant will reward you with fresh growth that will make them look like they did in early spring.

I'm noticing lots of white butterflies floating around my cabbage and broccoli. Those lovely visitors are laying egg masses that hatch into the green cabbage looper worms.

These are the caterpillars that eat holes in the leaves or in the case of many of them, they eat the entire plant.

Dipel is an organic productthatdoesagreatjob of controlling these pests. It can be used as a dust or spray. I prefer to apply it as a spray because I can get the product under the leaves where the worms are eating, and I can get a much more thorough coverage than I can with a dust. Don't wait too long to go on the attack or you'll be looking at some pretty sad plants for the remainder of the season.

Speaking of pesticide chemicals, most of them willadvise shaking well before using, the reason being that the active ingredient can settle out and form a hard clump on the bottom of the container.

fungicide and used a stiffwire to check and found this to be the case. I pried the solid loose with the wire and shook the bottle, rechecking to verify the mass of chemical was thoroughly dissolved ... it took a while to get it done, but I want to have the product do what it's supposed to do.

Hardwick's Jubilee Days parade remembers Marcella Scott

By Mavis Fodness

For the past 20 years Marcella Scott drove through the Hardwick Jubilee Days parade route promoting the Hardwick Servicemen's Mothers Club.

Scott planned on riding in this year's parade Saturday night with member Jan Baustian, but Scott died Friday at the age of 88.

Scott was remembered at Saturday's event. "This is the first time in 20 or more years that she wasn't in the parade," Baustian said. "She had planned on being here and wanted to ride (with Baustian)."

Instead Baustian's white mini van had "Memory of Marcella Scott" written on the vehicle's windows.

The current members' names were also included: Helen Kruger, Barb Slieter and Baustian.

Baustian was the only member able to participate in Hardwick's parade that included about 40 other parade entrants.

Scott was club treasurer and Baustian was president. "We kept up with meetings often over the phone," she said.

The club began meeting in 1944 and had grown to more than 50 mothers who had one or more children serving in the military.

Baustian said the group started out making bandages and 72 years later was supporting veterans at the Minnesota Veterans Home in Luverne.

For the past several years the club supplied bingo prizes and cookies to the veterans home. The club was known for giving out 50-cent coins to the winners. "We are keeping it going until the money is gone," Baustian said.

Annual dues have paid for the club's activities, which Baustian estimates will end next year unless more members join.

In 2017 Hardwick will celebrate the 125th anniversary of its founding.

a handful share what they have been doing since graduating from Luverne.

Some also included reflections and memories of their late friend and classmate.

"The scholarship obviously was a great blessing and helped me with tuition to get my four-year degree," answered Chris' friend Erik Stegemann. "I was in such awe that Barb and Gene did this."

Stegemann lives in Anamosa, Iowa, with his wife, Ashton. He works as an ag/commercial loan officer at Citizens Savings Bank.

"I still don't have a day that I don't think of Chris, because so many things remind me of him," he wrote.

Another close friend to Chris was Whitney Stoffel Harnack, who lives in Luverne. She earned a special education degree and has accepted a position at Roosevelt High School in Sioux Falls.

She said she remembered Chris in her recent wedding by naming him as an honorary usher alongside Stegemann.

Chris Ashby died at 16 July 5, 2006.

"I lost a brother that day and the pain doesn't go away," she wrote. "I always wonder what it would have been like to watch him tear up the Minnesota Gophers football field and what it would be like when he was drafted into the NFL. But it will always be a thought."

The Ashbys' interest in Chris' classmates means they often stop and talk at chance meetings.

"The Ashbys are such wonderful people, providing us all with the opportunity to attend post-secondary education options," wrote Katie Klosterbuer.

Klosterbuer received a Family and Consumer Science education degree from Minnesota State University in Mankato. After teaching for several years, she is now the Nobles County 4-H Program coordinator in Worthington.

"Whenever I see them around town, they are always interested in what I am doing with life," Klosterbuer wrote. "And they take the time to stop and talk."

On one such visit to Sioux Falls, the Ashbys talked with the one student who after two years didn't redeem the memorial scholarship. That classmate is going back to school this fall.

Through Chris' death the Ashbys also feel they have the opportunity to still connect with activities their son was involved in when he was alive.

The retired couple is frequently seen at sporting and music events along with community celebrations.

"Barb and Gene always were and continue to be great supporters of Luverne students and athletes," wrote Natalie Willers.

Willers attended the University of Minnesota Duluth and graduated with degrees in molecular and cellular biology and Spanish. She is currently pursuing an advanced degree while working at the Sanford Heart Hospital in Sioux Falls.

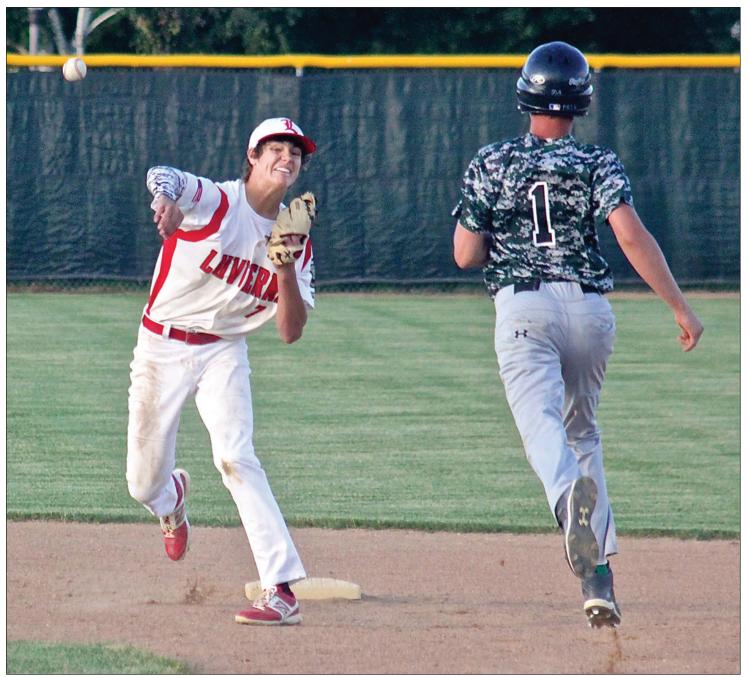

She said 10 years ago the Luverne community lost a friend and classmate who was hardworking and caring. The scholarship is a constant reminder of the spirit that was Chris.

"We remember Chris and understand his wonderful humanity through their constant acts of love and support," Willers wrote.

"They help keep a piece of him — it's never been just the money."

VFW's weekend fate is confusing, disappointing

A tip of my hat goes out to the Luverne VFW baseball team. The young Cardinals turned in an impressive performance over the weekend, going 3-1 at the Junior Upper Midwest Baseball Classic in New Ulm and Essig.

The only thing that could have made the weekend better would have been for the 2016 version of the Luverne squad to become the program's first team to qualify for the semifinals and final rounds on Sunday.

Due to what I perceive to be some strange tiebreaking rules for the tournament, that didn't happen.

Don't get me wrong. I've always liked this tournament because it offers our local boys an opportunity to play against a higher level of competition than they see around here on a consistent basis.

At the same time, I always wondered why the tournament officials strive to form two six-team pools, which doesn't allow tournament entries to play every team in the pool during a four-game format (two games for each of the first two days of the event).

Luverne was a member of Pool A and compiled a 3-1 record along with Minnetonka and Wayzata to lead the six-team pack.

The Cardinals lost to Minnetonka in pool play, but they defeated Wayzata.

According to tiebreaking criteria I found on the Luverne Community Education website, the first tiebreaker is the record of the teams in the games they played against each other.

Since Wayzata defeated Minnetonka in a head-tohead meeting, all three squads had 1-1 records so the second tiebreaker (runs allowed) came into

Wayzata yielded the fewest runs in four games, while Luverne and Minnetonka finished second and third in that respect.

FROM THE SIDELINES

Wayzata received Pool A's No. 1 seed for Sunday's semifinals based on that piece of criteria.

What happened afterward between Luverne and Minnetonka confuses this scribe.

According to what I read on the LCE website, the third tie-breaking procedure in place for the pool's second seed was supposed to be runs allowed.

I'm unsure how that played out between Luverne and Minnetonka. From what I understand, that didn't happen.

Tournament officials reverted back to the head-to-head meeting between the two teams, and Minnetonka received the second seed based on its 8-6 win over Luverne during Friday's second round.

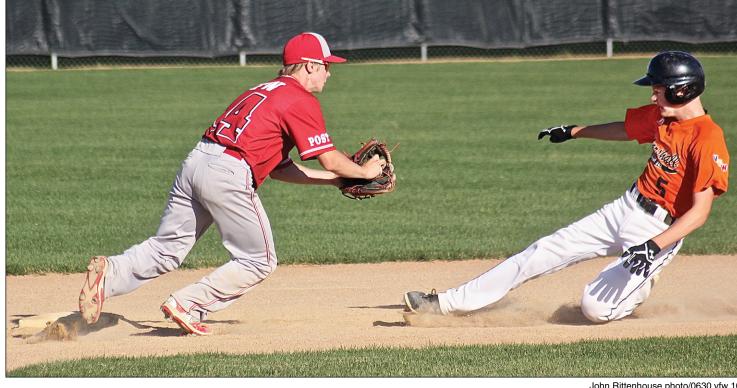

It may sound like a case of my having a mouth full of sour grapes, but I think the Luverne kids were slighted in this case.

They matched Minnetonka's win record and bettered the same team in terms of runs allowed in four pool games.

Yet it was Minnetonka that represented Pool A in Sunday's semifinals, where it lost to a Maple Grove team that defeated Wayzata in the championship game later that day.

Ultimately, my whining about this situation doesn't matter.

I still believe the Luverne boys deserved to play in the semifinals, but the young Cardinals can take pride in the fact they did go 3-1 in the most competitive tournament they will play in during the regular season.

Luverne VFW second baseman Mark Sterrett moves into position to tag out a Marshall Orange runner during Monday's game at Redbird Field. Luverne posted a 6-4 victory to up its season record to 13-1.

Young Cardinals upend Marshall Orange

A three-run rally in the bottom of the sixth inning gave the Luverne VFW baseball team its 13th win of the season Monday.

Luverne, hosting Marshall Orange at Redbird Field, sported a pair of one-run leads early in the game before the visitors plated one run in the top of the third inning to knot the score at three.

The score remained the same until the bottom of the sixth, when Luverne scored three times to set the stage for a 6-4 victory.

Trey Roberts singled and scored the go-ahead run on an infield error by Marshall.

Declan Beers added an RBI single before Tyler Reisdorfer, who reached base on an error, scored the final run of the rally on a wild pitch to make it 6-3.

Marshall scored one run in the top of the seventh to make it a two-run difference at game's end.

Ben Serie gave the hosts a 1-0 lead with an RBI single in the first inning, but Marshall moved in front 2-1 in the top of the second.

Charlie Reisch doubled and scored on a wild pitch and Beers slapped an RBI double when Luverne scored twice in the bottom of the second to regain the lead at 3-2.

Do you know me?

And He asked them, "But who do you say that I am?" Peter answered Him, 'You are the Christ." (Mark 8:29

An elderly woman walked into a local country church. A friendly usher greeted her at the door and helped her up the flight of steps. "Where would you like to sit today?" he asked politely.

"I vould like to sit in de front row please," she replied.

"Are you sure you want to do that?" the usher asked. "The pastor can be really boring sometimes." "Do you know who I am?" the woman inquired. "No," said the usher. "I don't believe we've ever met." "I am Reverend Gustav's mother," she replied.

"Do you know who I am?" he asked.

"No, I do not," she said. "Good," he answered. Exodus Ch. 3 tells the story of how God called to Moses from a burning bush to lead the Israelites out of their captivity in Egypt. Moses asked, "If I come to the people and say to them, 'The God of your fathers has sent me to you' and they ask me, 'What is His name?' what shall I say?" God said to

Moses, "I am who I am."

And He said, "Say this to the people of Israel, 'I am has sent me to you."

In the New Testament Iesus also used many "I am" examples in His teaching. He said, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life; I am the bread of life; I am the light of the world; I am the vine, you are the branches; I am the good shepherd; I am gently and lowly; I am among you as the one who serves; I am with you always; I am the resurrection and the life."

Jesus also used "I am" statements to define His and our relationships to God the Father. He said, "I am the Christ; I am the Son of God; I am in the Father and the Father is in Me; I am praying for those whom You have given Me, for they are Yours."

Gracious Savior, I am Yours. We are Yours. Be our gentle shepherd. Lead us and guide us. You are the vine. Let us, Your branches, grow deeply and securely in You, sustained by the lifegiving grace and joy that pours from Your heart. Strengthen and keep us in Your abiding love. In Jesus' name we pray, Amen.

The feedlot proposed to be expanded is located in the SW1/4 of Section 31 of Kanaranzi Township, T101N, R44W, of Rock County, Minnesota.

The existing feedlot currently has 775 head of beef finishing cattle housed in a combination of open lots and a total confinement barn for a total of 775 A.U. The proposed expansion will be done within the existing beef facilities by cementing some of the open lots, which will allow for an increase in the stocking density. After the expansion the feedlot will consist of 975 head of beef finishing cattle for a total of 975 animal units.

The solid manure generated will be stored in manure packs and the liquid cattle manure will be stored in a solids settling basin. The contaminated runoff from the feed storage will be managed in a vegetative filter strip. The feedlot will be owned by TJ

This publication shall constitute as notice to each resident and each owner of real property within 5,000 feet of the perimeter of the expanding feedlot as required by Minnesota State Law.

Thank you for all of the cards and well wishes for our Anniversary. Twenty years seems like just yesterday.

Gary and Emily Overgaard (6.30-7.3)

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, Or sat quietly in a chair. Perhaps you sent a funeral spray, If so, we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, As any friend could say; Perhaps you were not there at all, Just thought of us that day. Whatever you did to console our hearts, We thank you, so very much whatever the part. A special thank you to Hartquist Funeral Home, Pastor Cory Grimm, Luverne Farm Store, Tuff Nursing Home,the ladies for serving, all the cards, prayers, kind words, memorials and delicious food. Our mother will be missed!

The Family of Gladys Van Wettering

(6.30-7.3)

Words alone cannot say or express our sincere gratitude for the compassion and support shown to our family during and after Evan's life journey. He considered it a blessing to have special relations with our community, church, family, friends and health care providers that were so kind and caring as his health deteriorated in recent years. As we move forward with wonderful memories we say thank you!
