Nearly 400 walk for suicide prevention Saturday

Event brings together, comforts people who are grieving and raises $21,000 for AFSP

By Lori Sorenson

Nearly 400 people circled the Luverne City Park Saturday morning for the third annual Out of the Darkness Suicide Walk.

"The walk was incredibly moving," said Angela Nolz, who organized the event along with a team of volunteers and sponsors.

The walk raises money for research to end and prevent suicide and to show community support for those who have lost loved ones to suicide or have struggled personally with suicide.

Luverne City Council member and Luverne High School teacher Caroline Thorson addressed the group at the start of the event.

"We have witnessed the struggles of mental health conditions in our students, friends, family members and perhaps even ourselves," she said. "And we have seen tragedies surrounding these struggles. It's real. It's heart-breaking. And it's life-changing."

She said that's why events like the one Saturday morning are important to bring those struggles out of the darkness "to shine a light on brain health," and to create a culture that's smarter about brain health and more open about seeking treatment.

"Today as we walk next to our friends and family, I would also encourage you to walk with hope," Thorson said, urging

City Council requests tax abatement for child care center

Luverne City Council members took action at their Sept. 12 meeting to begin the process of paying for the Kids Rock! community child care center.

At Tuesday's meeting they approved a resolution that sets a public hearing on proposed property tax abatements.

The city will notify the school and county that tax abatement bonds will be issued for the child care building renovation project.

The actual bond sale is scheduled for Nov. 28, 2023, with bond proceeds being received at the end of December 2023.

Also on Tuesday the council approved a resolution establishing procedures relating to compliance with reimbursement bond regulations under the internal revenue code.

Sheriff's Office plagued by revolving door of staff

By Lori Sorenson

Keeping the Rock County Sheriff's Office at full staff remains a struggle, according to Sheriff Evan Verbrugge.

He shared his quarterly report with Luverne City Council members at their Tuesday, Sept. 12, meeting when he also reported difficulty keeping his department at full capacity.

"We just hired a new individual who started yesterday, but in the meantime, we lost another deputy who went back to eastern Minnesota," Verbrugge said.

"So, we're down one again." He said he's in the process of hiring another dispatcher, which will bring the dispatch team to full staff by October.

"We're hoping by the first of the year we'll be at full staff, but this has just been the name of the game," Verbrugge said about a revolving door of workers at the Law Enforcement Center.

Council member Dan Nath asked Verbrugge about the hiring pool of candidates who respond to job openings in Rock County law enforcement.

Verbrugge said there are 160 to 190 law enforcement positions open in the state of Minnesota, and that doesn't count 500 open positions in Minneapolis and 500 in St. Paul departments.

Further exacerbating the staffing shortage, he said, is the fact that Alexandria Technical and Community College gradu-

Loop connects Hawkinson Park for handicap access

By Lori Sorenson

Hawkinson Park on Luverne's west side is now connected to the Loop trail, thanks to a $50,000 grant from the Blandin Foundation.

The park connection is an 8-foot-wide concrete trail that provides handicap access from Cottage Grove Avenue through Hawkinson Park and to the Luverne Loop Trail.

The "Rural Leadership Boost Grant" is matched by $20,000 from the city to cover the project's roughly $70,000 cost.

The project qualifies for the grant because it "allows users of all ages and abilities to enjoy the public outdoor recreation facilities within the community."

Jason DeBeer of Concrete Creations completed the concrete pouring last week.

ated only 66 students from its law enforcement training center this year.

"That's about half of what they did 10 years ago," Verbrugge said. "Twenty-two of those students already had jobs spoken for before they graduated, which is unheard of."

This means there are fewer candidates available for the law enforcement positions open statewide.

"These kids can pick and choose where they want to work, and being here is a tough sell, unless you're from here and you understand it," Verbrugge said.

"Trying to get someone from outside the area to come down here and work is kind of tough."

He said there are other training programs to hire candidates from, but said, "I'm not going to lower my standards for hiring here."

Rock County's starting pay for a fresh-out-of-school deputy candidate is $23 to $26 per hour. Statewide average deputy pay is roughly $30 per hour.

Council member Caroline Thorson asked Verbrugge if he anticipated any other retirements in the Sheriff's Office in the near future, and he said that likely won't be until he retires.

"I've got 32-plus years and the next two closest have 20 years. We've got seven guys who have three years or less," he said.

"I've told my staff I'm done at the end of this term for sure. I'm tired."

Meanwhile, he said the sheriff's office recently lost three officers with a total of 85 years of experience. "So that takes a hit," Verbrugge said.

When investigator Jeff Wieneke retired June 30, Chad Kempema was promoted to that position and another person moved into Kempema's former position.

Craig Martinson retired in February and Mike Westerbur left in October 2022 to pursue opportunities outside of law enforcement.

School resource officer

Verbrugge said the school resource officer Jeff Stratton had to be taken out of the school to cover staff shortages, but he's back now with recent concentrated efforts to leave the SRO program in place.

Verbrugge updated the council on recent statewide policies on school resource officers' limits in how they restrain or physically respond to incidents in schools.

"Obviously we know most of these kids and we know the parents. We obviously go to church and Sunday school with them and to the grocery store," he said.

"We feel confident we're not going to have those issues. ... Not saying we're not going to, but I think we're going to be able to de-escalate those situations."

'Jake brake' complaints

In other law enforcement-related business, Mayor Pat Baustian asked Verbrugge to enforce the city's ordinance against "jake brakes."

"We brought it to your attention earlier this year and your staff mentioned to us that you discussed it with them," Baustian said.

"That was one of our biggest complaints this summer. ... It's usually southbound traffic, and it starts around Grace Lutheran and continues down the hill toward the stoplights."

He said he called a local trucking company after noticing an aggregate hauler jake-braking in town.

"It was as easy as that, and you don't see that company doing it anymore," Baustian said.

"That's what I've asked you to do, to make that call. We do have an ordinance for it, but it's probably more about education. They're being watched, it is a concern, we're taking citizen complaints and it is an issue. We ask they you support that. When the sheriff calls them or enforces it, it carries it bit more weight than if we do it."

Verbrugge asked what the fine would be for a violation of a city ordinance, and city attorney Ben Vander Kooi recommended he check with County Attorney Jeff Haubrich.

Caroline Thorson advocated educating more than penalizing.

"I think before a citation even, the pulling over and inconvenience of them being stopped ... Sometimes I think that education is really helpful — especially if they're driving for a company. They don't want that."

The city council has requested that the Minnesota Department of Transportation place signage on Highway 75 in Luverne advising, "no jake brakes in city limits."

Minnesota Housing Partnership releases 2023 County Profiles

2023 County Profiles provide new data measurements at county level in critical areas

The Minnesota Housing Partnership 2023 County Profiles resource features data on different demographics of cost-burdened households paying at least 30 percent of their income for housing. It also highlights changes in rent and home prices, eviction filings compared to pre-pandemic rates, racial disparities in homeownership, a comparison of top in-demand wages compared to current housing costs and more. MHP's bi-annual research publication includes new data measurements in critical housing areas, county by county

Key takeaways from the 2023 County Profiles:

- In every county in Minnesota, at least 1 in 4 renter households pay more than they can afford for housing.
- In every county in Minnesota, at least 1 in 10 homeowner households pay more than they can afford for housing.
- Every county in Minnesota has a shortage of affordable and available rental homes for extremely low-income households.
- Seventy-nine percent of counties have a shortage that exceeds 100 homes, and 31 percent have a shortage exceeding 500 homes.
- White, non-Hispanic households have strong homeownership rates throughout the state, ranging from 66 percent to 88 percent.
- Households with people of color have significant homeownership disparities in many areas of the state.
- In Minnesota's most populous counties (over 100,000 households) the homeownership rate for people of color ranges from 38 percent to 63 percent.
- 60 of 87 counties have seen an increase in evictions filings compared to pre-pandemic averages.
- In 40 of 87 counties, no permits for multifamily construction were issued in 2022.

Since 2009, MHP's County Profiles have been a key source of housing information for advocates, elected officials, and the media.

They serve as a valuable guide to understanding Minnesota's community and housing needs, and provide compelling data that makes the case for the critical need for housing investments.

The Sept. 14 Star Herald story about school resource officers referred to cities as being in Sen. Bill Weber's district, but they are not. The story stated that law enforcement officials in Redwood Falls, Mankato and Willmar withdrew school resource officers from their school districts. This is factual, but those towns are not located in Weber's legislative district. The Star Herald regrets the error.

Bike riding with Blondie

Stirring together a bowl of flower petals and dill seed she collected from the garden, my

THE NORTHVIEW

By Brenda Winter, columnist

With just a short distance to go, Blondie, pushing her bike up the last hill, looked accusingly at me and said, "I can't even believe you are making us do this."

6-year-old niece beamed at me and announced, "You're the best auntie ever!" Every family has one, and this one is the one in our family. With neon blonde hair, blue eyes and a personality that fills an empty room, this is the one my husband calls "Blondie." He alleges he can't remember her name.

Blondie is 6 – going on 17. She's smallish and weighs in at about 40 pounds but makes up for it in charisma.

We'd been having a wonderful morning together, and it was only going to get better. After the flower stirring there was toy playing, cat petting and after lunch – bike riding with two of her brothers.

The four of us set out on the bike path for JJ's. Big Brother was in the lead, Little Brother in the middle, the Best. Auntie. Ever. was in third place, and Blondie brought up the rear.

"Ew! A grasshopper!" she shrieked and hit the brakes, getting off her bike to examine the place where it had touched her.

There was no apparent grasshopper damage on her leg, so we continued.

We had traveled another 50 feet when she shrieked, "A dead snake!", hit the brakes, and got off her bike to look at it. It was most certainly dead.

We had gone about two blocks when she paused to rest. "I'm so tired!" she exclaimed. "My legs are sore!" Her brothers looped ahead and back several times while Blondie attended her sore legs.

We were finally making a little progress when she announced, "A mosquito bite!", stopped her bike, and got off to scratch her shoulder. "Ugh! It's so itchy! It's really, really itchy."

She got back on her bike. "How far is it to JJ's? I'm hot. Those flowers are SO purple. Look! A bird. I'm thirsty."

After another two blocks, she got off her bike and sat down on the bike path. "I need a rest. Do foxes live here? I'm hot. The boys should wait for us. Do you like butterflies?"

After what seemed like an eternity, we arrived at JJ's, ate our snack and headed home.

Another block later, she got off the bike to walk alongside it. "Why are we going this way? How far is it? My legs are tired. It's hot. That tree is really big."

With just a short distance to go, Blondie, pushing her bike up the last hill, looked accusingly at me and said, "I can't even believe you are making us do this."

I burst out laughing, put her on the bike and pushed her the rest of the way home.

Of course I did. I'm the Best. Auntie. Ever.

Stop saying suicide is a 'selfish choice'

GUEST EDITORIAL

By Mark Jacobson
Peer Support Specialist, Winona

We have come a long way in understanding the importance of taking care of mental health.

Although there have been many improvements in how mental health is addressed, there still is a stigma involved, especially when it comes to suicide.

One common misconception that leads to the further stigma around mental health is that "suicide is a selfish choice."

Is suicide selfish? No, suicide is not a selfish act. People who contemplate suicide are often in such a state of emotional distress and pain that they don't feel they have many choices to help end their suffering. There are many complex factors that could contribute to someone attempting suicide, but the bottom line is that people do not commit suicide out of selfishness.

Many people who contemplate suicide consider deeply how their death could affect others. Many people attempt suicide because they feel their existence is a burden to their loved ones.

They think their loved ones will live more fulfilling lives without them in the picture. This means they truly are not acting selfishly, but genuinely think the world is better off without them.

Often, people talk about suicide as though it is just another wrong choice to be made. Suicide is hardly a choice. It's easy for someone on the outside looking in to consider how many different options another person has.

Unfortunately, someone experiencing a mental health crisis can't usually see their available options clearly.

Intense hopelessness and emotional pain can hinder a person's ability to think rationally. If someone attempts suicide, it is likely because they saw that as either their best or their only choice to deal with their pain.

It's time to change the way we talk about suicide. The way we talk about suicide is important in breaking the stigma around it.

We can work to change the way we talk and think about mental health by viewing those with mental health conditions the same way we would someone with a physical impairment.

Just as someone with a heart condition may need a doctor's care to help them stay healthy, so does someone with severe depression.

If you take anything away from reading this, remember that suicide is not a selfish act.

Those with severe mental illness, such as major depression, are fighting their inner demons who make them feel isolated and as if they are a burden to others.

Someone in a mental health crisis who is contemplating suicide is facing a distorted perception of reality. They cannot see options before them and just want to unburden themselves and others.

If you or someone you know struggles with thoughts of suicide, now is the right time to seek help. In a crisis, where someone is in immediate danger, call 911. If you are in a state of crisis, you can call the suicide prevention hotline at 988.

The Finder-of-Lost-Things recovers cell phone for frantic Redwood Falls mom

A recent column of mine was about how I enjoy looking for things other people have lost.

A couple of Saturdays ago, while Mary and I, along with Gilbert, the dog, were on a Ranger ride, I got a phone call.

The call was from a frazzled mother from Redwood Falls.

She explained that her son had been in Luverne most of that day for a cross country meet and had left his iPhone somewhere on the school grounds. I thought looking for that phone would be right in my wheelhouse.

Emily, the frazzled mom, sent me a map with a ping on it with the

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH

By Rick Peterson, general manager

location of the phone. The map of the school grounds with a ping on it was hard to get a handle on as to the location because it was mostly of the school's rooftop.

We started our search on the north side of the school and came up empty. The bus carrying the cross country team hadn't return to Redwood Falls yet, so I couldn't get any additional information from the kid that lost the phone.

Emily sent me another picture of the ping location, but this time it was of a broader overhead view. According to the second ping, the phone was located on the south side of the school lying on the boulevard along West Dodge Street.

Mary and I walked up and down that part of the parking lot and never found the phone. Truth be told, about the only thing we found was pile after pile of dog poop.

By this time, the Redwood Falls cross country team had arrived home, and I was able to visit with the kid that lost the phone. He told me he was on the side of the building with the big L on it.

Then he told me where the team campsite for the day was.

I kept asking him questions such as what he was doing when he wasn't running. He told me the team hung out around the playground that is located back there and that he had taken some pictures with his phone of some of his fellow runners. I asked where that was, and he guided me toward the south side of the playground and next to the school building.

I looked around, and there sat the phone on top of a trash receptacle just where he had left it three hours earlier.

After we found the phone, I took another look at the first ping picture Emily sent, and once I knew what I was looking at, the ping was right on the phone.

begin paying for costs related to the renovation of the TCI building for a child care center prior to issuing bonds.

A separate contract will be executed for the replacement of the roof, as that needs to be completed prior to winter.

The expected start date for the rest of the renovation is next spring.

The city of Luverne, with support from Rock County and federal funds, is converting the former Total Card Inc. building (originally Tri-State Insurance) into a day care center.

The city paid $515,000 in March 2022 for the 30,000-square-foot office building, which needs $6.3 million in renovations to become a child care facility for up to 186 children.

Studies show a current day care shortage of 120 slots, and that doesn't account for more than 100 new jobs coming online with new employers in the next year. Many of those workers will also need child care.

The new facility, which will open in phases, will eventually have capacity for 24 infants, 42 toddlers, 60 preschoolers and 60 school-age children.

The city has committed $2.15 million toward the project and has launched a $1 million community fundraising campaign. Rock County will pay $550,000, and a grant through the USDA will cover $2.6 million.

Tentative plans call for construction to begin in March 2024, with a projected opening in early 2025.

In other business at the Sept. 12 meeting, the city:

•Scheduled an Oct. 10 public hearing on proposed assessments (unpaid utility bills and miscellaneous work.

When property owners neglect mowing, snow removal, tree work, etc. the city completes the work and assesses the property owners.)

The meeting will be at 5 p.m. in city hall. Letters will be sent to affected property owners with the amount of the assessments at least two weeks prior to the hearing.

•Approved a preliminary levy at $3,232,740, which is an increase of nearly 17 percent over the current levy, as was discussed at a previous meeting.

per incident.

The ordinance will be effective county-wide, as the cities in Rock County agreed to a single use ordinance for the county in a joint meeting with officials earlier this summer.

Cities, however, may choose to their own resolutions adopting the county's public use ordinance, according to County Attorney Jeff Haubrich.

State legislators legalized cannabis use in Minnesota for adults ages 21 or older. The law became effective Aug. 1 with little guidance as to how to implement it.

County and city leaders agreed to a proactive approach to public use until more direction is provided from the state.

Under the county's public use ordinance, cannabis or cannabis-derived can be used:

- at a private residence.
- private property not generally accessible by the public.
- on the premise of an establishment or event licensed to permit on-site consumption.

The annual closing of the city pool for cleaning and maintenance this year includes a major roof replacement project over the pool area of the building.

"It's quite an involved project," said City Administrator John Call.

"It's estimated to cost $300,000, but like any remodeling project, it's going to cost more than that. We've already had some things come up that we weren't expecting."

The fitness rooms have remained open for the annual fall maintenance, but Call wasn't able to say when the pool would reopen. ...

The roof work was prompted by the discovery of a rust problem in the metal decking and roof beams during the 2012 roof replacement project at the Luverne Area Aquatic and Fitness Center.

Call said the beams are structurally sound, but the metal decking was deteriorating and the structural steel under the roof surface was also rusty.

Since he's a stranger to many, Luverne residents might be surprised to know there's a potential world-class athlete currently living within the city limits.

Twenty-two-year-old Rob Gilles may not be the most organized individual among us, but he certainly is making a name for himself as an athlete who has selected triathlon competition as his sport of choice.

With impressive performances in the past four months, Gilles gained professional status as a triathlete. One of his recent accomplishments includes winning the largest triathlon in the world qualifying for the sport's ultimate event that will be staged in Hawaii in November. ...

Rob is the son of Dave (a pharmacist at Family Drug) and Amanda (a Minnesota Veterans home employee) Gilles, who moved from Fargo, N.D., to Luverne two years ago.

A new men's and boys' wear store will open in Luverne this fall in the former Goehle Hardware building.

Herman Goehle announced this week that he had leased the building to Barney Bishop, Worthington, who with Orville Hokeness owns Bishop's Clothing and Bishop's South 40 in Worthington.

Bishop told The Star-Herald he did not know when the store would open for business, because it would depend on when the work on remodeling the store front is completed.

More than two billion miles of operation by 250,000 K-F car owners served as a guide for Kaiser-Frazer Corp. engineers in designing chassis improvements in 1949 Kaiser models, now on display at Smith-Janssen Motor Sales.

The 15 chassis changes are responsible for easier riding and handling, greater road clearance and improved body strength, according to Jack Smith and Harry Janssen, local dealers.

Among the new features are a redesigned clutch linkage which provides a softer action and great durability; a new steering linkage which cuts the turning radius by 11 per cent; a completely redesigned gear shift mechanism; a stronger frame with improved road clearance and longer front coil springs.

Luverne high school will open its football season tomorrow afternoon when the Hills eleven will meet the locals on the field at the fair grounds.

As this will be the first game of the season, a large attendance is specially desired. The Luverne eleven is composed entirely of men who had played or tried out for positions in the team in previous years, and they expect to open their schedule this year with a game which will hold the interest of the fans and secure their regular attendance.

The game will be called at 3 p.m. and an admission price of thirty-five cents will be charged.

Under the direction of Coach Johnson, the boys have been out on the football field each favorable evening for practice and try-outs, and they expect to win for Luverne high school this year, popularity in football circles.

to exist, one of us had to go. The way it turned out, I was the one who was evicted, so on November 4, 1879, I got on the train at La Crosse, and with a ticket for Dell Rapids, I started west.

Still Has Patch

"I was met at the depot by my brother-in-law, who had a tree claim and homestead not far from where the present town of Sherman is now located. I had $1.25 in my pocket and a patch on my pants. I've still got the patch, but the money is long since gone.

"I believe my brother-in-law was some relative of Hitler's; at least his conduct was much the same with me when I was a small boy, as Hitler's seems to be with the German people. My wages were $9 per month for eight months."

"I went to school in the same country school house that was carried away a half mile by a hurricane before I came out there. The odd thing about that storm was the fact that the school building, with the teacher and some 20 pupils was carried all that distance, and set down to earth without injury to a single person. We could still see the marks where the building had gone through barbed wire fences, even when I was going there.

Herded Cattle

"After working for my brother-in-law for two years, a neighbor, Charles D. Reynolds, who lived across the state line into Rock county, offered $14 if I'd come to work for him, so I accepted. He had a big herd of cattle, as one time 700 head, and it was my job to help herd them. There was no such towns as Jasper and Sherman at that time. Why, where Sack's store in Jasper is standing right now was where I once fell asleep in the shade of a big rock, and when I awoke, my cows had crossed the Split Rock river and were grazing on a settler's property. The way the settler expressed his sentiments when I rounded up my cows made me feel as if my visit was not welcome."

His work day at the Reynolds farm began at 4 a.m. when he would begin milking eight cows. I was working from 'kin to can't'—'kin see, to can't see', he declared."

Mr. Angell recalls the "silver boom" at the Palisades years ago. He was working in a field when a stranger rode by on horseback and asked, "Been over yet?"

"Been over where?" queried the young man, as he walked from the plow to the fence.

"Why, to the Palisades to get a silver claim," replied the stranger.

Bought Silver Claim

"That was enough for me," Angell stated, "because I unhitched one horse from the plow, threw off the harness, and rode to the Palisades and bought a claim for $14. Guess I got as much silver as anybody did, though."

He relates that he became tired of farming so he decided he'd try his luck in business. He came to Luverne in 1886, getting out of the wagon at the corner of Freeman avenue and Main street. Walking down the north side of the street, he went into each store, asking for work, and finally when he was half way down the block, he walked into the J. H. Graff clothing store where he was immediately given a position on a six months' trial basis, for this board and clothes.

It was while working there that he laid the groundwork for his future business, a salesman for tailored goods; a business which he says he would still be in if materials were available.

It was also while working at the store that he learned to play a musical instrument. Band members always left their instruments at the store, and when he had little spare time, he'd practice blowing a cornet. Soon he had picked up a playing knowledge of the instrument, and tried several others. Later he learned to play a violin, and finally, he learned to handle a double bass violin. For years he played with an orchestra at Ellsworth, and also with the Luverne band was when it made a trip to the Minnesota state fair a number of years ago.

Into Business For Himself

In 1898, he left the Graff store to go into business for himself as a merchant tailor. His first territory was eight towns in this area which he made regularly by livery team. In 1900, he expanded his business when he bought his first car, a one-cylinder Brush.

"I didn't have to send notice in advance that I was coming in those days," he declared, "because they could hear my car long enough in advance to know when to be ready for me. The next car I bought was a two-cylinder Maxwell. In all, I had 14 cars, and when my business was at its peak, I was making 65 towns in Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota."

Mr. Angell was married March 18, 1901, to Marie D. Greene in a shanty owned by Smith, the harness maker, located near the Rock Island depot. "I couldn't let pleasure interfere with business, so my wife went with me on my trip through the country. That's how we spent our honeymoon."

On Home Team

If Mr. Angell related the many experiences of his younger days, it would fill a good-sized book. Among the most enjoyable tomes he had were those days when he was a member of the world's championship hose team, of the local fire department.

"My dad gave me my start in running," he relates. "One day I did something he didn't like, and while he was reaching for the strap hanging on a nearby hook, I was outside preparing for my future days on the hose team, by running away from him as fast as I could."

Asked if he had ever held an office, he replied that the only office he ever held was the time he was the grand custodian of the city pest house, during a smallpox epidemic. "My wife and I had it all to ourselves for 18 days, with all the expenses paid," he declared.

Mrs. Angell passed away December 16, 1925, and at the present time, Mr. Angell is the only one of the family in Luverne. A daughter, Laura L. Angell lives in Green Bay, Wis., and another daughter, Margaret E. Angell, lives in Vancouver, Wash.

Would Live Life Differently

He claims his hobbies are eating, drinking, sleeping and reading, and he does play a few cards now and then to pass the time away. Asked if he would do anything differently, if he had this life to live over again, he stated that he would do everything differently, just to see what it was like.

Mr. Angell has an interesting collection of old documents, one of which is a page from the account book of a distant relative who had something to do with the Continental Congress back in the 1770s. Another is a drawing card for a claim when the government opened part of the Rosebud Indian reservation for settling. He also has an original land grant deed, signed by President Franklin Pierce in 1856.

more community awareness, education and resources.

"In the words of Archbishop Desmond Tutu, 'Hope is being able to see the light despite all the darkness.'"

Participants were encouraged to wear colored beads in memory of those they lost to suicide. The different colored beads represented personal connections to suicide, such as the loss of a child, spouse, sibling, parent and others.

Community members prior to the event were invited to share their stories of loss, and those stories were shared from each of the perspectives during a bead ceremony.

As each story was read, a different color of sand was poured into a glass container with the end result showing all colored sand in the same container.

"We were able to unite as a community to grieve those lost to suicide," Nolz said. "I cannot thank those who were willing to tell their story enough for their vulnerability."

She said there's no way of knowing who may have been helped or inspired by the stories shared that day.

"We know that this has an impact on those who attended, and those

At the end of the day, the Luverne event raised $21,000 for the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention, and Nolz said that money brings more awareness and educational opportunities to the community.

Know where and when to apply fall nitrogen fertilizer

The Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) is reminding farmers and commercial applicators that fall nitrogen fertilizer applications are restricted in some areas of the state. Under the MDA's Groundwater Protection Rule, fall nitrogen fertilizer application is prohibited in vulnerable areas of Minnesota due to environmental concerns or risks. Areas with coarse-textured soils or areas above fractured bedrock or karst geology are the most vulnerable to nitrate loss and groundwater contamination.

The restrictions begin Sept. 1 each year. Farmers are encouraged to check the online map prior to fall application to determine if their fields are subject to these restrictions. For more information on the restrictions outlined in the Groundwater Protection Rule, visit www.mda.state.mn.us/nfr.

In other areas of the state where fall nitrogen fertilizer application is allowed, the MDA advises farmers and commercial applicators to check soil temperatures and wait for cooler conditions. Research shows that delaying fall application of anhy-drous ammonia and urea fertilizer, as well as manure, until the average soil temperatures reach 50 degrees F or cooler helps prevent nitrogen loss, protects water quality, and ensures more nitrogen will be available for next season's crop.

To assist tracking soil temperature, the MDA provides real-time, 6-inch soil temperatures at 25 locations across the state. In addition, the MDA provides links to soil temperature from the University of Minnesota research stations and the North Dakota Ag Weather Network (NDAWN) weather stations. View the interactive map to find the current 6-inch soil temperature and the past week's history.

Although the soil temperature network was established to support application of nitrogen fertilizer, it is equally useful for those applying manure in the fall. University of Minnesota Extension also recommends the same temperature delay (6-inch soil temperature below 50 degrees F) to prevent leaching losses.

For more information on the 6-inch Soil Temperature Network visit www.mda.state.mn.us/soiltemp.

Luverne Cardinals roll past Sibley East 35-0

By Greg Hoogeveen

The Luverne Cardinals football team hosted Sibley East Friday, Sept. 15, beating the Wolverines 35-0.

"It was nice to get a solid win and shutout at home," said head coach Todd Oye.

"We have played well at times this year, but this was the first game we played well from start to finish."

Luverne, now 2-1 for the season, will travel to Minnesota Valley Lutheran Friday, Sept. 22.

The Cardinals found the end zone two times in the first quarter.

Quarterback junior Carter Sehr sneaked in a 1-yard run for a Cardinal touchdown.

Luverne missed on the two-point conversion and led 6-0.

Later in the quarter, senior Conner Connell caught a 24-yard pass from Sehr and ran into the endzone untouched.

LHS was able to convert on the extra point and went ahead 14-0 going into the second quarter.

Senior Sam Rock rumbled his way into the end zone 1 yard out for a TD in the second quarter.

Senior Patrick Kroski missed the extra point kick to close the first half Luverne 20, Sibley East 0.

In the second half Luverne added two more scores in the third quarter.

Rock ran in his second touchdown from 1 yard out, and the Cardinals converted on their extra point play.

Sehr also posted his second goal on a 2-yard run with Kroski making the extra point kick.

The Cardinals ended the game with a 35-0 win over Sibley East.

"The team made some big improvements in Week 3, and we hope to continue that into Week 4 when we travel to play an undefeated Minnesota Valley Lutheran team."

TIMEOUT

By Greg Hoogeveen
Sports Editor

Oh, what a year it has been for sports

The 2023-24 school year is in full swing, and fall sports are almost halfway through the regular season schedule.

The school sports cycle continues, and at the end of the fall season it will mark my one-year anniversary as the Rock County Star Herald sports editor.

Luverne and Hills-Beaver Creek school districts have strong athletic programs, and it is a pleasure covering all the events for both schools.

As I reflect on the athletes and teams I've been able to cover and the people I have met and gotten to know, I've enjoyed it all.

I have enjoyed the heckles and playful jeers for walking into H-BC events with an LHS hat or shirt on.

That should be remedied once I get a Patriots ball cap from some concerned fans at H-BC.

I also remember covering boys' state hockey and not being able to follow Jarvie's directions back to the band bus.

I circled the Xcel Energy Center a few times trying to find the correct exit that I later found out was on the upper level.

I have experienced crowds erupting after a game-winning shot – to seeing the disappointment in athletes' and supporters' faces after close losses.

It has been a fun first year, and I know the next years will be just as interesting and rewarding.

One thing I could use help with is keeping up with athletes' achievements and honors in high school sports and beyond as they continue to excel in college.

For example, if your son or daughter is named team captain in college or reaches a significant college record, let us know. If they have broken or are about to break 1,000 points in their career, let us know. The same goes for any other school sports record.

I'd like to share their achievements in the Star-Herald, on our website or social media.

Be sure to check out our new Star-Herald website. It has larger photos, easier navigation, and a lot of H-BC and LHS sports events to check out.

You can contact me at sportseditor@star-herald.com or text me at 507-920-2534.

H-BC Patriots pound Cedar Mountain 40-6

By Greg Hoogeveen

The H-BC Patriots secured their third team win of the season against Cedar Mountain at home Friday, Sept. 15, with a 40-6 victory.

"I was very pleased with the way our guys played Friday night against a very good Cedar Mountain team," said head coach Rex Metzger.

"Our defense was really flying around Friday night, and for most of the game we played very sound against a very good offensive team."

H-BC was able to recover two Cougars fumbles, one by senior Riley Tatge and the other by junior Beau Bakken.

In the first quarter, junior Jackson Gacke intercepted a Cougar pass and returned the ball seven yards for the Patriots.

Turning the ball over three times hurt Cedar Mountain, stopping many of their needed drives against H-BC.

"I thought we played with a toughness and were able to get Cedar Mountain into some uncomfortable situations," Metzger said.

"Our offense was able to establish the run game early and forced them to load the box which helped open things up in the pass game."

Players scoring for the Patriots in the first quarter included Bakken with a 1-yard touch-down run, Gacke catching a 23-yard pass from sophomore Jamin Metzger, and Bakken making a two-point conversion run.

H-BC led the Cougars 14-0 after the first quarter.

In the second quarter, quarterback Metzger scored on a 1-yard keeper for a TD and Bakken ran in a 2-point conversion.

Bakken got his second TD later in the second quarter on a 2-yard TD run.

At the end of the first half the Patriots had a commanding 28-0 lead.

In the third quarter, Bakken added his third TD on a 35-yard scamper through the Cougars' defense.

Junior Sawyer Bosch added to the score with a 7-yard TD run.

H-BC closed the third quarter leading 40-0.

In the fourth quarter the Patriots sent in substitutes for the starters and ended up letting the Cougars score on a 6-yard pass. The final score was H-BC 40, Cedar Mountain 6.

The win puts Hills-Beaver Creek 3-0 for the season.

The Patriots will travel to Mountain Lake Friday, Sept. 22, for their next game.

Teach a kid to hunt during 'Take a Kid Hunting' weekend

Getting youth outdoors in pursuit of squirrels, rabbits and other small game is the focus of Take a Kid Hunting Weekend on Saturday, Sept. 23, and Sunday, Sept. 24.

During the weekend, adult Minnesota residents accompanied by a youth younger than age 16 may hunt small game without a license, although they must comply with open seasons, limits and other regulations.

Hunting small game is a great way to introduce kids to hunting.

Kids learn how to search for game sign, properly handle firearms and access hunting land — all without too much time sitting still and being quiet.

Anyone who wants to learn how to hunt can find helpful how-to guides on the Minnesota DNR website (mndnr.gov/gohunting) plus a recorded webinar about how to get started small game hunting (youtube.com/watch?v=Y-GPoAS-gCOW).

Small game hunting regulations are available at the Minnesota DNR small game hunting webpage (mndnr.gov/hunting/small-game).

Public land acquisition, Part 3: determining the exact land appraisal value and obtaining a marketable title

By Scott Rall

In the first two columns about public land acquisition, we covered how a parcel is selected and how these sales originate. Appraisals are then completed and surveys finished and then reviewed by a second party.

After these are finalized, you can actually get close to having the seller and buyer sign a purchase agreement. But there are still a few more steps until that takes place.

Once the survey is completed, both parties now know the exact number of acres that will be changing hands. If the survey indicated a change in those acres, the appraisal will need to be updated.

If the survey shows 1.2 acres more than originally thought, the appraiser will determine what the 1.2 additional acres consists of. Was it 1.2 acres of additional tillable ground, or was it 1.2 acres of road right of way, for example.

The value of those additional 1.2 acres will be determined, and the appraisal will be updated to the new total acres. The corresponding value of that additional 1.2 acres will be added to the appraised value.

But what if the survey showed 1.2 acres fewer than originally thought? Then the appraiser will reduce the appraised value by the value of 1.2 acres. So, we are getting pretty close.

The next step is a title opinion. A title opinion is completed by an attorney who will research the title of the property to ensure the seller has a marketable title. A marketable title is a title clear of any defects to ensure a smooth transfer of the property. Most titles are considered marketable, but others will have issues that need to be resolved before closing.

A determination is made as to whether there are any major issues. If there are none, then a purchase agreement is completed and the deal then becomes solid. Neither party can back out or change their minds after the purchase agreement is drafted and signed by both parties.

What issues can make a title not marketable? Boy, this list can be 100 pages long. Common issues include those related to a divorce or ownership still listed in the name of a deceased person, and documents will be needed to correct that. An example might be a property owned by a brother and a sister and one of them has since died but their name was either never removed from the title or their beneficiaries' name was never added to the title.

Some title defects will hold up the signing of a purchase agreement; others will not. The seller is required in the purchase agreement to provide a marketable title, and any title defects will become the responsibility of the seller to fix.

I have seen title issues arise on a property where the issue dates back to when the land was sold three prior owners ago.

In many cases the estate of those folks has long been closed, and in some cases they need to be reopened and have an estate executor named in order to sign documents for the deceased person dating back 30 years or more.

Title issues can certainly be challenging, but I have never seen one that could not be fixed. Most are just little things and every once in a while, you run into a doozy.

There is one last step that follows the executed purchase agreement, and that is a review of the appraisal by a third party. This is done to ensure prudent expenditures of state money.

We do not complete the appraisal review until the purchase agreement is signed because of the costs involved and there is no reason to spend those funds if the deal would fall apart for any other possible causes before the purchase agreement is signed.

Depending on value of the parcel, an appraisal review can take anywhere from three weeks to five months. The wheels of progress can grind really slowly when government agencies are involved.

Next week we will finally get to the end zone of a public land acquisition process, but there is still a fair amount of work to do before you can hang your hat on a job well done.

Minnesota's regular waterfowl season begins this weekend

Minnesota's regular waterfowl season opens a half hour before sunrise on Saturday, Sept. 23, with the same regulations as last year.

Minnesota has three waterfowl hunting zones — north, central and south — that share the Sept. 23 season opener but have varying end dates. The central and south zones also have a mid-season closure Oct. 2-6.

Hunters are advised that water levels might be low due to dry conditions across the state. Scouting ahead of the season can help identify any changes hunters need to make in accessing their preferred hunting locations.

Hunters should check the Minnesota Department of Natural Resource's waterfowl hunting page (mndnr.gov/hunting/waterfowl) for complete information including season dates, regulations, a waterfowl identification guide and weekly waterfowl migration reports.

Can you believe it?

"Can you believe it?" We often say this when we see or witness something that seems beyond the normal. We might believe it because we witness it, but the person we tell about it is a bit skeptical. We may even qualify these events with the phrase, "I wouldn't have believed it unless I saw it!"

Stories like this might be an account of the fish that "got away" or perhaps a sports team's come-from-behind win late in the game that defied all the odds. Perhaps it's an unexpected promotion or job offer.

These events may be hard to believe, but because we experienced or trust the source, we believe them.

The Apostle John witnessed many things that caused the disciples to look at each other and say in Aramaic, "Can you believe it?"

Perhaps one would respond, "I wouldn't believe it except that I saw it."

This attitude is easy to transfer to more important things ... matters of life and death ... eternal life and death.

In discussions of heaven or hell, people ask, "Do you believe they are real?"

In matters of Jesus and being the only way to heaven, people surmise, "Do you really believe he is the only way to heaven?"

In asking about the Bible as the inspired word of God, "Really, do you believe that?"

Many aspects of faith challenge our hearts and minds because we weren't there to see everything the Bible talks about. In fact, we were not first-hand witnesses of any of the events that are recorded in the Bible.

So can you believe it? The Apostle John was challenged by people asking the same question.

BUILT ON A ROCK

By Pastor Mike Geiger, Crosspoint Church (WELS) Georgetown, TX

Can you believe Jesus is the Messiah? Can you believe he is real? Can you believe he is the Son of God? Can you believe he accomplished all for eternal life?

The Apostle John didn't give a dissertation on the doctrine of Christ, although he could have. Rather he simply shared what convinced him that Jesus was the Christ, that he was the Son of God and eternal life came through him.

What was that? Signs. Miracles. Things that only Jesus as the Son of God could do. Change water into wine. Heal from a distance. Make the lame walk. Feed 5,000 with minimal food. Raise the dead.

John chose seven miracles to record in his Gospel with one key purpose: To answer the question, "Can you believe it?"

The Apostle John wrote: "Jesus, in the presence of his disciples, did many other miraculous signs that are not written in this book. But these are written that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in his name." John 20:30-31

We pray: Lord, thank you for revealing who you are and what you've done to John and the other Apostles so that we too might have certainty that you are the Christ, the Son of God and by believing, we may have life in his name. Amen.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor statistics, the agricultural sector is still the most dangerous in America, with 573 fatalities, an equivalent of 23.1 deaths per 100,000 workers. Fall harvest time is not only one of the busiest times on the farm, it's also one of the most dangerous.

BE SAFE - NO ONE CAN TAKE YOUR PLACE

KEEP KIDS SAFE

EVERY

...a child dies in an agriculture-related incident.

Tractors and ATV/UTVs are the leading sources of fatal events. Agriculture had the leading number of occupational fatalities across industries for youth age 17 and younger from 2011 - 2020. Make a safe place for kids and always know where they are.

BE SAFE ON YOUR TRACTOR

...of farming accidents involve tractors.

Tractor rollovers are the leading cause of fatalities in the agriculture industry. They account for more than half of all farm-related deaths. One in 10 operators will overturn a tractor in their lifetime. A roll bar on a tractor increases chances of survival from a rollover by 99%.

KNOW YOUR CHEMICALS

Chemicals can get into your body through skin, breathing, eyes or swallowing — so always be mindful and wear protective equipment when working with them.

HOW TO IMPROVE SAFETY

- Get enough sleep.
- Don't wear loose clothing or jewelry.
- Don't take shortcuts.
- Ask for help.
- Let your family know where you'll be.
- Maintain your equipment.
- Know your equipment.
- Follow and keep up with the laws.
- Stock a first aid kit.
- Check your stress level.
- Avoid drugs and alcohol.

GRAIN BIN SAFETY

NEARLY 2 DOZEN

...people are killed each year in the U.S. in grain entrapment accidents.

Flowing grain can trap someone standing on the grain in just 4 to 5 seconds and that person will be completely covered in grain in about 22 seconds. If entry is essential, use proper safe entry procedures including: turning off all grain unloading equipment, having an observer and using a life harness. NEVER DO IT ALONE! Don't rely on a phone to call for help.

For more farm safety information, visit www.agrisafe.org/nfshw/ FREE WEBINARS DAILY during Farm Safety Week and available for viewing later.
