The 110-megawatt Walleye Wind Farm in western Rock County is taking shape with cranes assembling bases for 40 turbines across a 49-square-mile (31,000 acres) footprint.

Starting in October, the turbines will generate $400,000 to $600,000 in annual local tax revenues and feed electricity to the Minnesota Municipal Power Agency through a 30-year agreement.

Artists insert personal themes, messages in 7-foot nutcracker sculptures downtown Luverne

By Mavis Fodness

Luverne's first public art project was unveiled Sunday with the artists explaining the inspiration behind their one-of-a-kind artwork on 7-foot fiberglass nutcrackers.

Retired art and media instructor Kim Schmidt unveiled "Maize" as a tribute to Luverne's ag industry.

"My belief is that Luverne would not be what it is today if it were not for the hardworking farming families and agricultural workers who are a part of this city and county," he said.

Schmidt added a whimsical approach to his design.

A grain bin is painted as a hat, work gloves cover the nutcracker's hands, and both a green (on front) and a red combine (on back) make up the bulk of the design. Schmidt carried soybean, corn and wheat depictions throughout the sculpture including the nutcracker's hair of corn leaves.

The people painted inside the combines represent local farmers Nate Siebenahler and Jerry Kuhlman, for whom Schmidt provides seasonal help.

"It's a shoutout to them for their hard work and letting me be

A Luverne High School grad will be honored Oct. 1 at the Verne Drive-In for the outdoor movie theater closing night of the season.

Carson Ehde, 21, assisted the Rozeboom family in operating the seasonal business.

"He was there for our first night opener under new ownership and never hesitated to come back and help ... even if I was being a bit bossy," wrote Gracie Rozeboom in a post to the business's social media site.

Admission for the Saturday, Oct. 1, event is free.

Ehde died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound Tuesday, Sept. 20. According to Rock County Sheriff Evan Verbrugge, Ehde's stepfather, Matt Sorenson, called the dispatch center at 3:48 p.m. about a possible suicide at the family's rural Garretson home.

Faithful group gathers at Blue Mound Lutheran Church for annual service

When church elders closed Blue Mound Lutheran Church in 1976, they vowed to meet once a year for renewed faith and fellowship.

On Sunday about 100 former parishioners, their family members and interested friends gathered for the annual fall festival. This year they celebrated the 150th anniversary of the church's founding.

The Rev. Gary Klatt, retired pastor of St. John Lutheran Church in Luverne, officiated at Sunday's service.

He painted a picture of rural Minnesota in 1872, when the church was founded. He described the wilderness that was southwest Minnesota and the efforts families took to developed the area into fertile farmland. The work was hard.

"They didn't have a lot but they had hope and faith," he said. "God led the way.'

Star Herald to interview School Board candidates for online video profiles

By Lori Sorenson

Eighteen candidates are seeking election to five open seats on the Luverne School

There are 15 seeking election to four open seats with four-year terms.

They are Eric Hartman (the incumbent) Michael DeBates, Heather Johnson, Jason Schear, Amber Lais, Matt Goembel, Amber Nath, Jacob Hartz, Austin Kurtz, Brett Hood, Zach Nolz, Randy Sasker, Maggie Siebenahler, Josh Gangestad and Scott Wessels.

Three others are seeking election to an open seat that has two years remaining on the term. They are Ryan De-Bates, Maggie Vanderburg and Matthew Van Grootheest.

Following are basic profiles of each person on the ballot, and the Star Herald will soon start the process of video-recording brief interviews of the candidates who will respond to questions as they would during a live debate or forum.

The video clips will then be shared online for voters to peruse at their leisure.

The Star Herald was asked to host a live forum, but it was determined that time and space for 18 people at once wouldn't allow for a fair expression of views by each candidate.

More information will be announced as the candidate interviews are completed.

Early voting for the 2022 election begins Friday, and voters in local precincts with mailballot-only voting will receive their ballots in the mail soon. There 18 mail ballot precincts in Rock County out of a total of

According to Rock County Auditor Treasurer Ashley Kurtz, people have begun the process of applying for absentee ballots.

"We have quite a queue of both online and paper applications," she said. "So we are asking people to be patient as we work through getting all of those out next week. We'll do them in the order they were received and work through them that way. ... People are obviously ready to vote now,"

There are several races in other Rock County elections, and the Star Herald will profile those candidates in future publications and online.

The Minnesota Secretary of State website, sos.state. mn.us, has details about the candidates on Rock County ballots for the Nov. 8 General Election.

Voters directed to MNVOTES.gov

Using mnvotes.gov, Minnesotans can register to vote, check their registration, and update their registration on their computer or smartphone.

Early voting will begin on Sept. 23. Minnesota registered voters can request an absentee ballot to vote from home at mnvotes.gov or vote early with an absentee ballot at a local election office.

Registration is especially important for those who live in mail-in ballot precincts. In the 2022 election, more than 150,000 Minnesotans live in areas that vote exclusively by mail — without a local polling Registered voters in these parts of the state will be mailed ballots starting Sept. 23, which must be returned to elections offices by Nov. 8.

In addition to registering to vote, Minnesotans can use mnvotes.gov to learn more about the races on the ballot and where they can vote. This year voters may notice the races they can vote in, and their polling places, have changed due to redistricting. In Minnesota, new maps of these district lines were produced by a panel of five judges and released to the public on Feb. 15, 2022.

71 years of 'The Granddaddy of Band Festivals'

Enjoy Saturday's Tri-State Band Festival

My day job is teaching world history and psychology classes to high school students.

year in the second or third week of the school year, I teach about cultural diffusion in world history.

Simply put, cultural diffusion is when one group shares its ideas, technologies and/or ways of life with another group.

We study how this process happened in the earliest civilizations and how it is still happening today.

One needs to only look at the internet, slang language or music to see examples of how ideas spread quickly from one place to another these days.

The use of local or other familiar examples often helps students understand a concept.

For that reason, we also talk about examples of cultural diffusion from Minnesota and even Luverne.

Minnesota examples of cultural diffusion might include duct tape and Post-it Notes, indoor shopping malls and Target, Prince and Bob Dylan music, Tonka Toys and roller blades, Betty Crocker cookbooks and cake mixes, and Arctic Cat and Polaris snowmobiles.

But what about hyper-local examples? What ideas have started in and spread from

The example that we often use this time of year is the Tri-

State Band Festival. On Saturday, Luverne will be hosting the band festival for the 71st time. As far as I know, Tri-State is the oldest high school band festival of its kind in the Upper Midwest, and possibly much

Way back in 1951, local Luverne business leaders had the idea of hosting a parade for area high school bands on a fall Saturday. The goal was to

IN OTHER WORDS

By Jason Berghorst, reporter

bring people to Luverne and to support local businesses.

Needless to say, the idea was a good one and it worked. And 71 years later, it's still working.

And as with all good ideas, they are bound to spread. (Thanks to cultural diffusion!)

After seeing what a great idea a high school band festival was, communities such as Waseca, Vermillion, Sioux Falls, Marshall, Sioux City, Brandon, Orange City, and many Twin Cities suburbs have all begun hosting their own band festivals over the years.

Now nearly every Saturday in September and October, multiple communities in the three-state area host band festivals.

Many of these festivals have adapted Luverne's ideas and have come up with some new ideas that have also spread.

Some festivals have become much larger than the Tri-State Band Festival, and some even host their festival on the same day as Tri-State, meaning fewer bands are coming to Luverne on the last Saturday in September than in years past.

Yet, Tri-State endures.

Thousands of band members and fans will descend on Luverne Saturday to share and enjoy the hard work of young people who love music.

The Rose Bowl is sometimes called "The Granddaddy of Them All" because it was the first college bowl game and is still continuing today.

I like to think of Tri-State as the "Granddaddy of Band Festivals."

Make sure to take some time this weekend to enjoy our very own Rose Bowl!

A suicide note from a grieving mother

Thank you for the tributes, but be mindful of the message

It warms my heart to see Carson's young friends rallying to remember him and raise money in Carson's name to help others. I love them for this, but I cautioned them against glamorizing Carson's life amid their loss.

We need to avoid the suggestion that suicide is a noble way to escape burdens. Carson was indeed a special soul who had many reasons to live, but he was much like his 20-something friends at a stage in their lives preparing for uncertain futures. They are all special and don't need to die in order to be honored for who they are.

Eli Bakken and Jaden Knips returned Carson's truck Sunday night, and we talked about how to drive the message about suicide prevention. They designed T-shirts sporting Carson's pickup (pictured below), but a mental health logo rests on the sleeve and a hemline statement carries the 988 suicide lifeline number.

They miss Carson and they just want to help, as do I.

But I couldn't help my own son who lived under my own roof and had access to all the opportunities that are supposed to prevent suicide. If Carson couldn't be saved, who can? Many people struggle alone without insurance and without the luxury of family support and resources.

I don't know how to help, but at the very least, I'm not mincing words about what happened: Carson took his hunting firearm to our north grove and ended his life.

He did this on Tuesday only moments after a noon phone call with Gracie. He said he would start a baling job at 1 p.m., they made plans for Wednesday night dinner and told each other, "I love you," and "See you later."

He left no suicide note and no indication he was planning to leave us. His farming paperwork was on the table with his laptop and checkbook, and he'd gathered some laundry to bring upstairs. ... As if he'd return moments later.

We won't know what happened in his final hour, but we believe something in his brain overpowered what should have been a powerful human will to survive.

The brain's complicated biology allows us to feel good when it's functioning normally. When the delicate balance is off, we feel sick, and it can kill us.

The same is true for diabetes, heart disease or other common illnesses. Left untreated, they also kill, but we routinely treat these conditions. Mental health treatment is far less routine.

Our local providers are scrambling to keep up with the brain health needs, but our health care system as a whole is ill-equipped to save people who are ashamed to seek help and who face obstacles of poor insurance coverage and a shortage of options.

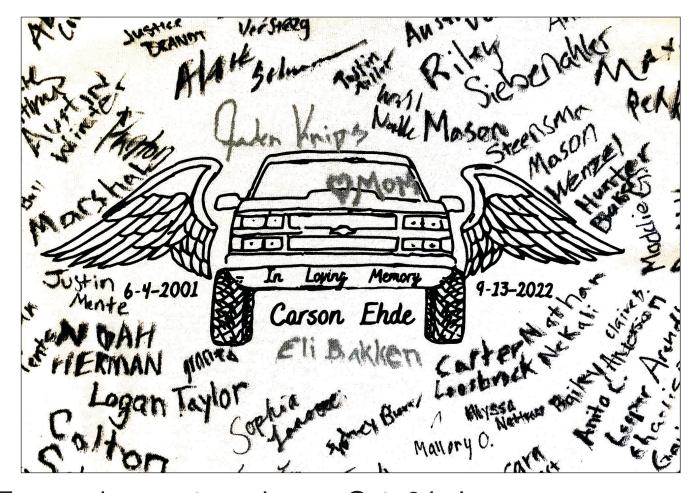

My hope is that with each tragic loss we — policy makers especially commit to doing better.

Carson was loved. He knew he was loved ... by many people in many ways. He also knew he wasn't feeling well and was getting treatment for his illness. We were doing the best we could with what we had.

For all these reasons we're not asking "what if" or wondering "if only." Now we're just praying for peace and understanding.

Rock County Pheasants Forever banquet coming up Oct. 6 in Luverne

Just a quick heads up to the  $38^{th}$ annual Rock County Pheasants Forever banquet just around the corner.

Mark Thursday, Oct. 6, on your calendar. This year's banquet, just like last year's, will be held at Big Top Tents and Events in Luverne. By the way, Big Top Tents and Events has become the "go to" area event center for banquets, weddings, meetings, class reunions, funerals, proms and any other sort of gathering.

There is an ad in today's Star Herald with all the information for the Pheasants Forever event including ticket prices, raffle items, games, over 15 guns to be given away, and date and time of the banquet.

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH

By Rick Peterson, general manager

With the Pheasants Forever banquet on the horizon, that means it's time to get the hunting gear out of storage and ready for the opener just a few weeks away.

It seems the ammunition shortage isn't nearly as bad as it was a year ago, but the prices are still way out of whack.

It's always a crap shoot – at least for me anyway – if my hunting pants will still fit comfortably. It's funny how boots, jacket, socks and gloves all seem to fit year after year, but pants? ... Not so much.

Here's a hunting fashion tip for you. If you find that your hunting pants may be a little snug around the midsection, try the "unbutton and conceal" method. Pop the button, loosen the belt, and conceal with a long sweatshirt and say "Ahhhh.'

If you didn't oil your boots after last season before you put them away, it's time to do so now. A good, soft, flexible pair of hunting boots is as important as your gun and dog.

Speaking about your hunting dog, if you haven't been working with and walking your hunting dog by now, good luck with that.

OK, now comes the most import piece of advice I can give my fellow hunters, at least those with a spouse.

Now is the time to make those new purchases, be it guns, ammo, clothing or boots. Discreetly make your purchases, stow them away so when opening day rolls around and your spouse happens to notice your purchases, you can truthfully say you've had them for a while and they've been in your hunting closet for so long you're not sure how many years you have had them.

If that doesn't work for you ... and this one has for me in the past, I simply tell the wife I won it at the Pheasants Forever banquet.

Get your Rock County Pheasants Forever banquet tickets today, just in case you need a cover story.

Bremer missing one band festival button -1956

By Mavis Fodness

Faye Bremer blames the unintended collection of Tri-State Band Festival buttons on her late grandfather.

Walter Greene worked as a bill clerk for the South Dakota Senate. Bremer inherited his bucket full of political campaign buttons and would casually toss the buttons from the Tri-State Band Festivals into the bucket.

In honor of the band festival each year, Bremer displayed her button collection at her business, Salon 75 Hair & Spa. Clients would bring in buttons to add to Bremer's collection.

Sorting through her collection one day, Bremer found she's missing only one -1956 — in the band festival's 71-year history.

"I didn't mean to collect them," she said. "I just threw them into the political bucket."

Bremer originally thought she was missing two, having not found a 1966 button.

The History Center indicated that the 1965 band festival was canceled due to rain, and the committee decided to use the already-made buttons for the following year.

In 2020 no button was made in light of the event's cancelation due to the pandemic. Face masks were made for the Luverne High School band, who used the last Saturday in September, usually designated for Tri-State Band Festival, as a day for a guest clinician.

A felt banner given to Bremer allows for 55 of the buttons to be displayed. She's contemplating a new way of displaying her collection. She began taking buttons off in anticipation.

The 2022 button takes on a special significance, as her oldest grandson will compete in the festival Saturday.

"I am so proud and excited to see another generation going through the marching program within the family," Bremer said.

"I can't wait to watch him march and watch his parents watch him march. Precious."

Band Fest/from page 1

The Tri-State Band Festival is one of the longest-running community marching band competitions in the region, according to the Luverne Area Chamber.

Many of the bands, including Luverne, will compete in Saturday evening's Big Sioux Review in Brandon, South Dakota.

Mavis Fodness photo/0922 Tri-State Preview 2022 Sidebar Faye Bremer, Luverne, holds a banner with 55 Tri-State Band Festival buttons attached. Bremer unintentionally collected the buttons herself and from her Salon 75 clients. She's missing one — 1956 — and learned no button was made in 1966. The 1965 event was canceled, and those buttons were used the following year.

Since Carson Ehde's Sept. 13 death, his friends have been working on a public message to bring awareness to mental health and suicide. His mother, Lori Sorenson, indicated that Ehde was concerned about his mental health and was taking steps to improve.

"He knew he was dearly loved, despite the final moment of darkness that overtook his light," Sorenson shared in her son's memorial.

Since his death, Ehde's friends have been working on a public message to bring awareness to mental health and suicide. They are also raising money to donate to a local cause for suicide prevention. (See Page 4 for more on the re-

"Carson had a bright personality that made everyone smile and positively impacted every life he touched," Andrew Wagner wrote on the online donation platform.

The goal was to raise $10,000, and the goal was met in three days.

More than 1,000 people attended the Friday night visitation and Saturday funeral at Grace Lutheran Church. See Page 7 for Ehde's complete obituary.

often manned burgers at the grill. This summer he had asked Gracie's cousin to help him shop for an engagement ring, and the couple were contemplating their next step in life together.

Don't mess with nature if you want last year's poinsettia to bloom at Christmas

By George Bonnema, Luverne Horticulturalist

We have reached the fall equinox, which means we have equal day and night hours in a 24-hour period, with the night hours getting progressively longer.

Poinsettia plants understand that means it is time to initiate their flower buds. Sept. 15 through Oct. 15 is the magic time frame for that to happen, and nature never fails in the diminished day length.

So I am saying that if you have kept your poinsettia from last year and want it to be blooming for Christmas, you have to make sure that it gets no artificial light for the next month.

With nature, when it gets dark, it stays dark until dawn ... no exceptions. But obviously the plant still gets sunlight during the day. So if you turn on the light in a room where the poinsettia is sitting, you just messed up the schedule and probably confused the poor plant.

I have never checked how forgiving they are, but there are consequences to messing with nature.

We have moved from the early apple crop to midseason varieties, which means we can expect better flavor, texture and length of storage.

Late varieties are the top tier in that department. That doesn't mean the other varieties aren't good. It just a part of their farming family," he said.

Jen Huisman created "Patriot" in homage to those who serve in the military, especially the women who served in World War II.

Instead of painting, Huisman, who taught art at Ellsworth High School, used an assemblage technique with pictures of her grandparents, war posters and other vintage images she gathered from the Library of Congress and from the Internet "glued" together in the design.

Three of the pictures are of her grandparents. "Both are World War II veterans," she said.

"I remember my mom trying to find ways to honor my grandmother in her later years of life as a veteran and there weren't many tributes to the women of World War II."

Huisman said the assemblage technique allowed her to work with her hands and feel the objects as she moved them into place. She was experiencing a temporary loss of her eyesight at the time and found painting difficult.

Assemblage was a good alternative.

"The sense of building something and placing tactile objects inspires my creative process," she said.

Patriot is located at the corner of West Main and Estey streets.

Janine (Anderson) Brands used her talent influenced by her older brother, Terry, and her former high school art teacher, Kim Schmidt, to create "Solitude," which depicts her passion for the outdoors and the peaceful feelings it brings to her.

She was inspired by the buffalo as her primary design, and she included Sioux quartzite rock and the prairie plants of the Blue Mounds State Park on her nutcracker.

"The Blue Mounds are just gorgeous to me," Brands said.

She added a lone wolf and an eagle to the nutcracker's back side as influences of people close to her. She also included a weed growing from a crack on top of one of the nutcracker's feet. The weed her late husband, Nolan, farmed a half mile east of the church.

As neighbors, they attended the Blue Mound Lutheran Church's annual service and felt welcomed.

"We knew the people there," she said.

When Nolan died in 2013, he had chosen to be buried in the Blue Mound Cemetery, which can be seen from his former farmyard.

Blue Mound Lutheran is no longer just for former members but for anyone who celebrates God and all his goodness.

Dick Remme encouraged young people at Sunday's service to find it in their hearts to continue the cemetery association and keep the church and cemetery viable for future generations.

"We are not young anymore," he said. "There aren't any qualifications (for association membership)."

Those who are association members see that the church is worth preserving.

"There is something special about Blue Mound Lutheran," said Dolly Remme. "The Lord has looked over the church. It looks just like it did when we left it in 1976. It's a wonderful, peaceful place."

Those attending the Sunday service were invited to share memories before moving to the church basement for a catered meal.

Tom Solberg received a round of applause for sharing of an observation.

"This is a beautiful location and a beautiful church, but what makes it special is the people," he said.

means we can expect some really great apples in October.

It is interesting that some of the best-flavored apples are available only at local orchards and markets. They are not grown commercially for the larger grocery stores.

Honey Gold is one of those varieties, as are Fireside, Connell Red and Regent. These are apple varieties worth the hunt if you are looking for amazing flavor.

I have been observing older, mature spruce and pine trees looking pretty tough this summer. Lots of dead branches and even entire trees are giving evidence of stress from the drought they have tried to endure for the last three summers.

Evergreen trees and shrubs do not have a deep root system as is the case with most deciduous trees. The lack of rainfall and resulting dry top soil is disastrous and the basis for the stress for these trees. Going into winter not adequately hydrated  $means\,needle\,burn\,from\,both$ the sun and wind.

We have had some rainfall lately which helps temporarily, but if replenishing the moisture in the top soil doesn't happen naturally during October, I strongly advise watering those evergreens to help them survive the winter.

by his cousin to come to the United States, so he decided he would make a trip over to see if he liked it well enough to go there to live with his family. After being here a year, he sent the family money and told them to come.

"The first few days out of port were as beautiful as I have ever seen," Mrs. Brauer recalled. 'I'll never forget how the band would go on deck and play every morning at sunrise. When we had been at sea several days, there arose a great storm, and none of us were permitted to leave our rooms. I'll never forget the people on board. Some were crying, others were playing and still others were singing. The storm did considerable damage to the ship, but it didn't go down, and we finally reached America."

The trip, made on the "Karlsruhe," required 18 days.

Recalling the portion of her life when she lived in Germany, Mrs. Brauer stated that until her father remarried, she, being the oldest of the girls, helped her grandmother keep house when she was not attending school. School in those days was for children eight to 14. After the age of 14, everybody went to work.

Score 36-0 as second half canceled

By John Sichmeller For the Star Herald

The Luverne Cardinals football team upped their record to 2-1 after defeating the Windom Eagles in a shortened game Thursday night in Luverne.

The Cardinals raced out to a 36-0 halftime lead, and just 18 seconds into the second half the game was stopped due to lightning. Both coaches mutually agreed to call the game final, giving the Cardinals the 36-0 win.

The story of the night was the resurgence of the Cardinal offense. After starting the season with 21 first-half points against Redwood Valley, the Cardinals had gone scoreless in six straight quarters heading into Thursday night's game. The Luverne offense utilized several big plays enroute to a 29-point opening quarter versus the Eagles.

"It was really fun. We started off hot in Redwood and then the offense had a few rough spots in the Jackson game," said junior quarterback/tight end Connor Connell.

"This week I think we focused on getting every-body involved and taking care of the football. We knew we were the more physical team, we just had to execute."

The Cardinals were able to keep the Eagles guessing early in the game as three different players contributed plays for more than 20 yards on the Luverne opening drive.

Taking over at their 20-yard line, the Cardinals got their first big play when Connell connected with senior wide receiver Gannon Ahrendt on a 25-yard passing play. On the next play senior running back Tyson Cowell broke free for a 25-yard gain. On the next play, Connell ran for 21 yards, bringing the Cardinals to the Windom 5-yard line. Two plays later the Cardinals scored their first touchdown of the game when Connell's pass found senior running back Kaleb Hein for a 3-yard touchdown catch. Sophomore quarterback Carter Sehr was able to find Ahrendt in the end zone on the twopoint conversion, giving the Cardinals an 8-0 lead with 9:30 to go in the first quarter.

The Cardinal defense started strong as well, as senior defensive lineman Zachary DeBoer was able to sack the Windom quarterback on the first play for a loss. After the Eagles failed to move the ball on their next two plays, they were forced to punt the ball back to the Cardinals, and Luverne took over on their own 24-yard line.

Just two plays later, the Cardinals got back in the end zone when junior running back Gavin DeBeer took the second down handoff and broke free down the right side of the field for a 76-yard touchdown run. Patrick Kroski's point-after kick was good, and the Cardinals upped their lead to 15-0 with 7:11 left in the first quarter.

After another successful defensive stop, the Cardinal offense would continue to rack up big plays. Connell was able to complete a pass to Hein for 25 yards on first down, and on the ensuing first down Connell ran for 18 yards and another Cardinal touchdown. Kroski's extra point kick was good, and the Cardinals led the Eagles 22-0 with 5:04 left in the first quarter.

Windom once again went three and out on their offensive possession and punted the ball back to Luverne. It took the Cardinals just three plays before they were back in the end zone after Sehr threw a beautiful pass over a Windom defender and into the arms of Connell for a 29-yard score. After another successful Kroski kick, Luverne was up 29-0 with 1:45 to go in the opening quarter.

Both defenses held strong to start the second quarter, but the Cardinals got one more big play from Connell to cap the scoring for the night. Taking over at the Windom 48-yard line, Connell broke free and ran down the right side of the field for his third touchdown of the night. Kroski connected on the extra point to bring the lead to 36-0 with 5:01 remaining in the second quarter.

Patriots keep football record intact; team moves to 3-0 on the season

The Hills-Beaver Creek football team continued their winning ways Friday night with a convincing 42-14 victory over the Heron Lake-Okabena/Fulda Coyotes to move to 3-0 on the season. The Coyotes fell to 0-3 in the loss on their home field.

The Patriots jumped out to an early 14-0 lead after the first quarter. The Pates' first touchdown came on an 18-yard pass from Sawyer Bosch to Brock Harnack with 4:31 remaining in the first quarter.

Later in the first period, Bosch completed a 28-yard pass to Justin Roelfs for a touchdown. Bosch's two-point conversion run brought the score to 14-0 in favor of the Patriots after one period of play. Both first quarter touchdowns were set up by the Patriot defense with stops on the Coyotes' fourth-down

In the second quarter the Patriots' defense continued consistent play, coming up with two pass interceptions by Justin Roelfs, a fumble recovery by Cole Rozeboom, a sack by Brayden Metzger and a forced punt on fourth down. The Patriots' offense added six points on a 67-yard run by Roelfs to take a 20-0 halftime

In the third period Bosch scored a touchdown on a one-yard run, and Roelfs added to the Patriots' total points with a seven-yard run. Riley Tatge hauled in a two-point conversion to make the score 34-0 going into the fourth period.

The HLO/F Coyotes scored twice on 3-yard runs in the fourth quarter, adding one two-point conversion pass, to put 14 points on the board.

H-BC came back with a score of their own when Jamin Metzger ran the ball 57 yards to the end zone. Mason Shaffner took the two-point conversion run over the goal line to make the final score Patriots 42, Coyotes 14.

Coach Metzger sang his team's praises after the game. "Our Oline and D-line played well against HLOF's size up front," he said. "They loaded the box and we (offensively) were able to complete a couple of early plays, which was big."

Windom received the ball to start the second half, but the teams would only get three plays in before lighting was spotted by the officials and the teams were directed to leave the field. Both coaching staffs met during the delay and agreed to end the game with Luverne winning 36-o.

After his big night on offense, Connell was also happy to see the improvement that his team is showing on the defensive side of the ball as they move throughout the season.

"The main things we have improved on are alignment and knowing what our leverage is and where our help is coming from on defense," Connell said after the game.

"We have also gotten more physical, especially this week, which has helped us in short yardage situations."

DeBates earns second-place finish; best Cardinal performance

The girls' and boys' Luverne cross country teams participated in the Mayo Invitational in Rochester Thursday, Sept. 15.

The Luverne girls' varsity ran to a remarkable fifth place finish. Teams placing ahead of Luverne include Stillwater Area in first, Eastview placing second, Rochester Century coming in third, and Owatonna earning fourth.

Jenna DeBates placed highest for Luverne at the meet with a second-place finish in 18:31.47 on the 2.95-mile course. The course is one of the more challenging courses the team will run, according to coach Pete Janiszeski.

"If we run good times on that course, we know we will be able to run much faster on different courses and at the end of the season," Janiszeski said.

"We go to Rochester to get the kids in a big meet atmosphere prior to our post season meets," he said. "It gives us a chance to go against some bigger schools and pretty talented individuals."

Part 1 of dog training series begins with forms of obedience

I promised a while back to share with you my four-part series on dog training obedience and some more advanced training that you can accomplish on your own if you choose to

I will start this conversation with a variety of quotes I have coined over my 25 years of training experience:

•If you don't mind a dog that barks a little bit, you'll have a dog that barks a little bit.

 The dog will perform to exactly the owner's level of expectation of the

 In order to have an obedient and compliant dog, the dog must actually know it is a dog and not a child.

 Anyone can train their own dog successfully if they want to.

I cannot count the number of dogs that I have trained to complete a calm and easy walk with their owners. This is the most rudimentary training and can be done with very little effort. It amazes me the number of owners who will tolerate just about any behavior in their dog and then think that this is just the way it has to be. Not true!

Let's start with my definition of obedience. In my world there are two distinct kinds of obedience. The first one I refer to as the Scotch Post-it Note obedience. This is where the dog can perform low level routine tasks with some level of success as long as there are absolutely no other distractions. You can interact with the dog in the backyard by yourself and they seem to do OK. Imagine writing the word obedience on a Scotch Post-it Note and then sticking it to your dog's fur. It might stay there as long as the wind does not blow or a few drops of rain don't fall. If there is no physical exertion by the dog, the obedience note will stay attached. No other dogs can be seen or heard.

The second form of obedience is the "soak a sponge in a bucket" obedience. Take a bucket and fill it with imaginary liquid obedience. Then take

OUTDOORS

By Scott Rall Outdoors columnist

the dog, in this case the sponge, and submerge it in the bucket. Obedience soaks into every crack and crevice of the object, that being the dog, and it would take a very long time for the liquid to evaporate and lose the obedience it once contained.

Obedience is a skill the dog learns, and that needs to be refreshed on a regular basis. My four dogs each get a planned and scheduled obedience refresher about every three weeks or so. These planned training efforts, special time set aside just for the distinct purpose, happen less often in the fall when we are hunting almost every day, and the opportunity to refresh obedience happens on a very regular basis.

So, what does it take to train your own dog? There are only two requirements and they are No. 1, a little time, and No. 2, lots of commitment. It does not take two hours a day to train a dog. For basic obedience and intro level hunting, it takes about 15 minutes per

When you start a formal obedience program, you need to make a commitment for these 15 minutes a day for about 30-45 days. This done correctly is not one day this week and one day next week for 45 weeks. It is 15 minutes per day for 90 percent of a continuous 30-45 days.

A puppy, or any dog for that matter, builds on what it has learned each day, and multiply this education and experience with repetition over time. If you start on a Lego project and add a brick, it still looks small, but over time you can build the Star Ship Enterprise. Training a dog is no different. It is my belief that if you are making progress and then take five days off, the animal will actually lose a little of what it had learned and then you need to put those building blocks back in place before you can advance further.

There is one last thing I feel is important for you to know before you start any formal obedience program. A dog is not a radio or other electronic device. They do not turn on and off in an instant. When you are playing, then play. When you are training, you are training and not playing.

It is not playing fair with the dog to have it all wound up playing fetch, (the radio on at full volume) and then think you can shut that dog down to rock-solid statue status (radio turned off, no volume) in two seconds.

When I am playing with the dog, I use a voice that is high and upbeat. When I am training, I use a voice tone that is much lower and has no excitement in it. I will attach the leash and say something like, OK Ghost, it is time to go training. The dog will immediately sense your seriousness by the tone of your voice.

When the training is over, I release the dog with an exuberant "OK," and this tells the dog that training is over and it's back to playing fetch.

DNR encourages deer hunters to open archery season with a plan

Minnesota's archery deer season opened Sept. 17, and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is encouraging hunters to make a plan for the season by considering safety, hunting regulations, chronic wasting disease and steps they need to take to process their deer.

"The start of fall is an exciting time for hunters who are looking forward to deer season," said Barbara Keller, DNR big game program leader.

"Because regulations and CWD testing requirements can change year to year, it's critical for hunters to think ahead and make a plan for a safe, successful and enjoyable season," she said.

Hunters may notice their deer permit area bag limit has changed. The DNR increased the bag limits or lottery permits in 28 deer permit areas this year and reduced limits in 12 DPAs.

Bag limit changes are made based on deer populations in each DPA relative to the population goal for that permit area. Population goals are reviewed every 10 years through a process that includes public input.

Hunters should know the DPA number of the area they plan to hunt prior to buying a license and ensure they understand CWD regulations and sampling requirements for that particular area.

Hunters can use the DPA lookup tool on the DNR's make a plan for deer season webpage (mndnr.gov/ DeerHunt) to check if the DPA they plan to hunt requires CWD sampling during the opening weekend of firearms A season, has carcass movement restrictions, or has deer feeding or attractant bans in place.

As a result of CWD's larger footprint in Minnesota, the DNR has changed the availability of self-service sampling stations. These stations will be available during firearms deer season, and the most up-to-date locations and available times will be posted on the DNR website (mndnr.gov/CWD).

For archery season, selfservice stations will only be available in DPAs 213, 256, 257, 262, 265 and 273.

Live out your faith, share your hope

John 12:44-46: "Then Jesus cried aloud: 'Whoever believes in me believes not in me but in him who sent me. And whoever sees me sees him who sent me. I have come as light into the world, so that everyone who believes in me should not remain in the darkness."

Greetings! As I read this text, I was thinking of all the people who have been baptized, confirmed and learned about Jesus in our area. Where are they all? Why are our small towns getting smaller and our large cities getting bigger? Where are our children, and what are they doing?

Being a baptized member of the body of Christ does not end at the walls of our churches. Being a baptized member of the family of God means we take what we learn within the confines of a building and live it out in the world.

Living out our faith is what Jesus is asking each of us to do. Whoever believes in Jesus must believe in the God of life!

This past week we celebrated 150 years as a worshiping community of faith at Bethlehem. We marked that celebration with some impressive decorations that had real meaning.

One was the beautiful flock of doves that hang from the rafters of our church. Each dove is inscribed with the individual name of a person who was baptized in one of the three churches that make up Bethlehem Lutheran Church and the date on which that person was baptized.

Though many of the people have passed on to heaven, when they were alive, they lived out their faith sharing the love and the light of Jesus to many others in many other places.

Jesus is the light that illuminates the world with his love and moves us all from darkness to light.

Kathy Troccoli sings a beautiful song called,

BUILT ON A ROCK

By Pastor Nita Parker Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Hills

Being a baptized member of the family of God means we take what we learn within the confines of a building and live it out in the world.

"Take your Candle, Go Light Your World." "There is a candle in every soul, Some brightly burning, some dark and cold;

There is a spirit who brings a fire,

Ignites a candle and makes His home.

So carry your candle, run to the darkness, Seek out the helpless, confused and torn

Hold out your candle for all to see it

Take your candle, and go light your world;

As I listen to this song, it reminds me that all we do is blessed by the Savior. All that we are is a gift from God. When we baptize babies, it is to help them grow into adulthood, full of life and love, full of the Holy Spirit. When we do our job, when we teach and encourage and are blessed by the little ones, we need to be happy when they take their light and go out into the world to share that light with others!

That is the plan, that is the hope! That is God's goal – sharing the life of Christ with everyone we percent from 2021 and exceeded the 10-year average by a similar amount, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources' annual roadside pheasant survey.

Pheasant numbers in able nesting conditions Minnesota increased 18

When the pheasant hunting season opens on Saturday, Oct. 15, bird numbers are expected to be strong.

"The weather really cooperated this year in terms of producing favorfor pheasants," said Tim Lyons, DNR upland game research scientist.

"Pheasant numbers are generally as good as, or better than last year."

This year's statewide pheasant index was 48 birds per 100 miles of roads driven. Compared to 2021, all regions saw an increase in pheasant numbers except the southwest, which saw a decrease of 8 percent.

Weather and habitat are the main influences on Minnesota's pheasant population trends.

Pheasant numbers up after favorable spring weather

Weather causes annual fluctuations in pheasant numbers, while habitat drives long-term population trends.

Habitat factors

Conservation Reserve Program acres in particular play a large role in providing habitat for pheasants in Minnesota.

The program, authorized under the federal

Farm Bill, pays farmers to remove environmentally sensitive land from agricultural production and restore vegetation that will reduce soil erosion, improve water quality, and provide habitat for wildlife and pollinators.

Despite a long-term downward trend in CRP enrollment, there was a net increase in CRP acres in 2022 as approximately 5,000 additional acres were enrolled.

In addition to CRP acres, there were more than 7,000 acres protected through easement programs like the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program and Reinvest in Minnesota.

An additional 9,000 acres of habitat were permanently protected through U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service acquisitions and by the DNR as wildlife management areas.

How the DNR conducts the survey

Monitoring pheasant population trends is part of the DNR's annual roadside wildlife survey, which began in 1955.

Wildlife managers and conservation officers in the farmland regions conduct the survey during the first half of August.

This year's survey consisted of 166 routes that were 25 miles in length, with 147 routes located in the pheasant range.

Observers drive each route early in the morning and record the number of farmland wildlife game species they see.

Pheasant hunting areas

Many publicly owned lands are open to hunting, as are private lands enrolled in the Walk-in-Access program (mndnr. gov/WalkIn).

Hunters can use the DNR's online mapping tools to find WMAs by accessing the WMA finder at mndnr.gov/WMAs), and the DNR Recreation Compass (mndnr.gov/Maps/ Compass) to help locate state hunting grounds and private lands enrolled in the WIA program, including updates on the condition of specific properties.
